LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Letters to the editor are welcome. Views on all matters are acceptable, following the guidelines of good taste. While there is no limit on length, brevity is encouraged. Letters are subject to editing for style and length. Each letter must contain name, address and signature. A phone number is needed for verification only. Anonymous letters are not accepted.

Support Youth Center

Dear Editor:

The Carmel Youth Center was founded on the belief that young people need a place to go where they can become involved in the programs and development of new activities.

When kids don't have anything they are enthusiastic about, they tend to get bored and that is the critical time when they can be easily influenced to use alcohol or other drugs or get involved in other activities that are detrimental to their health and development.

By the same token, if these individuals are given positive influence by their peers and a concerned adult to whom they can relate, their chances of becoming valuable members of the community are greatly increased.

The Youth Center's new director, Phil Cherry, is deeply committed to these concepts, and the kids know he has their best interests at heart. Phil has the respect of everyone who knows him and his very special ability to communicate with young people. He is the driving force behind the current resurgence in popularity of the center and he deserves the support of the community.

In a community where single-parent families are common, a man of Phil's character is invaluable. To many kids he is a one-man Big-Brother program. This is not to say that parents in the community can't communicate with their kids, only an observation that many of our young people feel it is easier to tell their problems to a man closer to their own age and not someone in authority over them such as a parent or teacher.

In fact, one of Phil's goals for these kids is more open communication between themselves and their parents. Phil also places great enthusiasm behind the idea that if the kids themselves are involved in developing new activities that the other kids not currently involved will see the new activities as an alternative to less beneficial uses of their time.

Let's support Phil and the Youth Center. It helps us all.

What Brunn did

Dear Editor:

In my letter to the Pine Cone/Outlook a couple of weeks ago, I wrote that Howard Brunn was rewriting history when he said in an ad: "Howard stopped the supertankers from coming into Monterey Bay."

My letter seems to have provoked an outraged response from a Ms. Holliday, who signed as president of a paper organization called Friends of Grove. She, in turn, rewrote history with the wholly inaccurate claim that FOG attempted unsuccessfully to work with our Sierra Club Moss Landing Task Force. The opposite is true.

I'd related that Mr. Brunn came to the supertanker fight late — less than a year before it was settled. My letter briefly told how Ventana Chapter's task force fought PG&E from 1974 until 1980, when the 90,000-ton tanker terminal application was finally denied by the Corps of Engineers.

The point is that a good many people deserve credit for the supertanker defeat, including the late Dr. Betty Davis, then executive secretary of Friends of the Sea Otter. Among our Task Force members during the long fight were Dr. Peter Scott (UC-Santa Cruz), Celia von der Muhl, Dave Bockman, Gary Griggs, Earl Moser, Carl Larson, Verne Sidnam, Chuck Rowell (Naval Postgraduate School), Dr. Winona Trason (MPC), and Jud Vandevere (Friends of the Sea Otter).

Certainly, Howard Brunn didn't do it alone, as he claimed.

Nor did he alone "save the artichoke fields," as his ad asserted.

In fact, Mr. Brunn was one of many who were involved in OLAF — Odello Land Acquisition Fund — which raised $254,000 in contributions toward purchase of the 155 acres.

Mr. Brunn was involved, sure. But how about Fred Farr, who was OLAF chair; or Skip Lloyd, who was both chair and vice-chair; or Dorothy Parker, who was treasurer; or Donna Rico, Barbara Rainer, Mike Brown, Vernon Head or Pat Sippel, all of whom were intensely active in OLAF? Or Al Eisner, who gave large amounts of publicity and editorial support to the long campaign? Howard Brunn didn't do it alone.

Again, Mr. Brunn claims he was "a prime mover for the Carmel Valley Master Plan." This ignores the great work, over years, of such Carmel Valley leaders as Glennella Chang, Mary Ann (Corky) Matthews and Nancy Burnett, just to mention a few of the many who worked thousands of hours to fashion a growth-controlling, environmentally sensitive plan.

It's important to refresh our memories on these matters, because Karin Strasser Kauffman, who opposes Brunn in the supervisorial campaign, has a high degree of respect for facts, for history and for the folks with whom she works.

Mr. Brunn once said: "Give me the big picture; don't bother me with details."

But Monterey County Supervisors must pay attention to details. A single word change in a county policy can make a dramatic difference in its effect.

Karin Strasser Kauffman pays attention to both details and the big picture. That's why my name is alongside those of five Ventana Chapter Executive Committee members who endorse her candidacy.

The odor of catfish

Dear Editor:

In the past, I have been critical of the Monterey Jazz Festival for what I felt was a lack of sensitivity and respect for the local community. But the promoters of the ill-fated Catfish Blues Festival reached an all-time high in disrespect and insensitivity.

Not only did they use funds from a corporation that many feel has the worst affirmative action record in the country, but they induced others in the black community to volunteer their time by promising scholarships for young people and funds to create a pipe dream called the West Coast Blues Hall of Fame.

What they created was a West Coast Blues Hall of Infamy. What they did was to set back concert promotion on the peninsula 10 years, and what they accomplished was irrevocable damage to the cause of affirmative actions for minorities all over the state.

The project from the beginning was ill-conceived, ill-advised and fraught with greedy, self-serving intentions. These so-called civic leaders owe the Monterey Peninsula, the Monterey Fairgrounds, and the black community in particular, an apology.

Board disrespects teachers

Dear Editor:

The teachers of the Carmel Unified School District have very sound reasons to be outraged at the school board's niggardly offer of a 1 percent cost of living increase. We should all be outraged, in fact.

There are few, if any, institutions which have a greater and more profound impact upon a society and its individual members than its schools. The quality of the future is being forged in our classrooms, and our teachers are the cutting edge. Let no one forget that we mismanage our educational institutions at our peril!

The Carmel school board, in the short eight months it has existed, has managed to inflict considerable harm upon education in the district. It has done so by not recognizing that the district's generally excellent teachers deserve decent compensation. A beginning salary of $14,486 is indecent. A 1 percent cost-of-living increase is to heap insult upon injury.

The board ought to understand that you get what you pay for. If we persist in grossly underpaying our teachers, we shall soon not be able to attract dedicated candidates of knowledge and wisdom. As it is, many teachers are forced to seek second jobs. In fact, a local educational publisher thrives on offering part-time jobs to teachers. By the way, how many of the school board's members would work for $14,486 with perennially dismal prospects for cost-of-living increases? No one, I suspect.

By their stand during the last eight months, the majority members of the board have shown their contempt for education and ignorance of personnel management. In the future, I hope, the board will concentrate its energies on rectifying its errors. The number-one priority should be a prompt settlement of its dispute with the district's teachers. The number-two priority must be a restructuring of professional salary schedules. If, however, some of the board members feel they are not up to this task, they ought to resign — the sooner the better!

Brunn favors developer

Dear Editor:

Howard Brunn's political ads proclaim "The Fifth District Needs a Stand." That's true. We do. But Howard Brunn seems unwilling to give it to us.

Brunn refuses to take a stand against the proposed massive development of San Carlos Ranch. He supports the planning commission's recent decision to approve 2,000 housing units there. Such intensive development would have a devastating impact on our traffic and water supply.

Karin Strasser Kauffman was at the planning commission hearing and argued strongly in favor of the original Citizens Advisory Committee recommendation limiting development of San Carlos Ranch to 500 units. The Carmel Valley Property Owners Association and League of Women Voters also supported the 500-unit plan. Where was Howard Brunn? He supported the out-of-town developer rather than the citizens of our community!

The Fifth District does need a stand. We need a supervisor who will stand up, not fold up when the developers put on the pressure.

Against Lincoln closure

Dear Editor:

As a library card holder for the past 15 years, I am concerned about the proposed plan for expanding the current building into Lincoln Avenue, and oppose it.

The present Harrison Memorial Library is a unique and beautiful building, well-proportioned as it is. Due to the fact that additional space is needed, two empty lots adjoining the present library parking lot to its north were purchased about four years ago for this purpose. The library patrons have been eagerly awaiting this construction.

Now, a proposal is being considered to block off all vehicular traffic on Lincoln Avenue between Ocean Avenue and Fifth Street. Carmel already has an extremely difficult traffic and parking problem.

This would eliminate a number of parking spaces and would make it impossible for delivery to the shops facing Lincoln Avenue, as well as upsetting the traffic in that block.

The street would have to be torn up for months while PG&E lines, water and sewer lines, etc. would have to be moved. Also, the resulting two-story building would change the sunlight pattern of Lincoln Avenue, darkening the existing shops, one of which — a locally owned and operated business — has been in the same location for 30 years.

Those of us who use the library would like to know why the already purchased two lots are not being utilized and are strongly against putting a building right in the middle of Lincoln Avenue.

'Get on with it'

Dear Editor:

I am pleased to have known Howard Brunn for more than 28 years, mostly when I lived and worked on the South Coast.

I have been in the construction business the majority of that time, doing both commercial and residential building. I relate to a guy like Howard Brunn for Fifth District supervisor.

Howard Brunn will stand up for the local building industry. He is not in favor of outside "hit-and-run" builders, but understands the necessity of balanced growth. He favors a dam, and says: "Let's get on with it." O.K., let's get on with it. Vote for Howard.

Support for Karin

Dear Editor:

When I see the consistent efforts Karin Strasser Kauffman has made in recent years to study and act upon issues affecting Carmel Valley, I know she will bring to the post of county supervisor the same capacity for all the residents of the Fifth District. Karin certainly has my support on Nov. 6.

Posters have disappeared

Dear Editor:

I am an avid supporter of Karin Strasser Kauffman for supervisor and I am also her friend. We have worked on several school and local committees together in the past, and her leadership qualities were outstanding.

I wanted to do something to help her campaign and let her know that my support could be something more than casting a ballot.

Two weeks ago I called Karin and offered to put up some of her posters on my Carmel Valley Road mailbox and deliver some to my neighbors who also wanted to support her. Armed with posters, posts, staple gun and hammer we got quite a few visibly located along Carmel Valley Road.

The rains came and went. The posters remained, clean, green and a bit soggy, but nevertheless still there.

This morning there was not a poster in sight for over two miles. They had been torn down and confiscated.

I believe it is really below-the-belt tactics when the opposition doesn't even allow equal opportunity to advertise.

I telephoned for more posters this morning.

Better for dogs

Dear Editor:

Being a lifelong admirer of the canine species, I can honestly say I have liked some dogs better than some people.

Nevertheless, in the recent controversy about dogs riding in the back of their owners' pickups, I have to say I see a lot of happy animals who might otherwise be spending their days in a pen at home.

I think if you asked the dogs in question, they would prefer to take the risk.

Recall group will circulate petition

LEADERS OF a recall drive against Carmel Unified School District Board of Education Trustees Robert Fenton, James Yates and Susan Bromfield will begin circulation of official recall petitions next week.

That is the word from recall committee spokesman Richard Stott, whose group presented the trustees with a "resign or be recalled" ultimatum last week.

Board President Fenton, Yates and Mrs. Bromfield have one week to file their responses to the notice of intent to recall, which was hand-delivered to them along with a written demand that they quit to spare the district a messy political battle.

All three say they will stay on the job and fight a recall drive. If all three had chosen to resign, the Monterey County Board of Education would have had to appoint three of its members to the Carmel board to conduct school business until a special election could be held. (See related story, this issue.)

Trustees Doyle Clayton and Pat Condren are not targets of the recall campaign.

To place the recall on a special election ballot, the recall committee must obtain the signatures of 20 percent of the 17,314 registered voters who reside within the Carmel Unified School District boundaries.

The notice of intention to recall given to trustees last week bore the names of four recall supporters — Robert Giraudo, Stephanie Johnson, John Palshaw and Reid Wagstaff.

The notice lists eight reasons why trustees should be recalled. The statement claims that trustees:

• "Inappropriately assumed responsibilities of administration.

- "Neglected your role as an educational policymaker."

- "Failed to seek the input of professional staff, faculty and parent groups prior to making major decision."

- "Acted as an individual, not as a part of a deliberative body."

- "By the foregoing actions, provoked needless confrontations with the administration, faculty and the public in which you have appeared rude, uncommunicative and secretive."

- "By the foregoing actions, provoked the resignation of an esteemed superintendent of schools (William Rand resigned Oct. 8)."

- "By the foregoing actions, prompted highly-qualified professional administrators and faculty to consider seeking employment elsewhere."

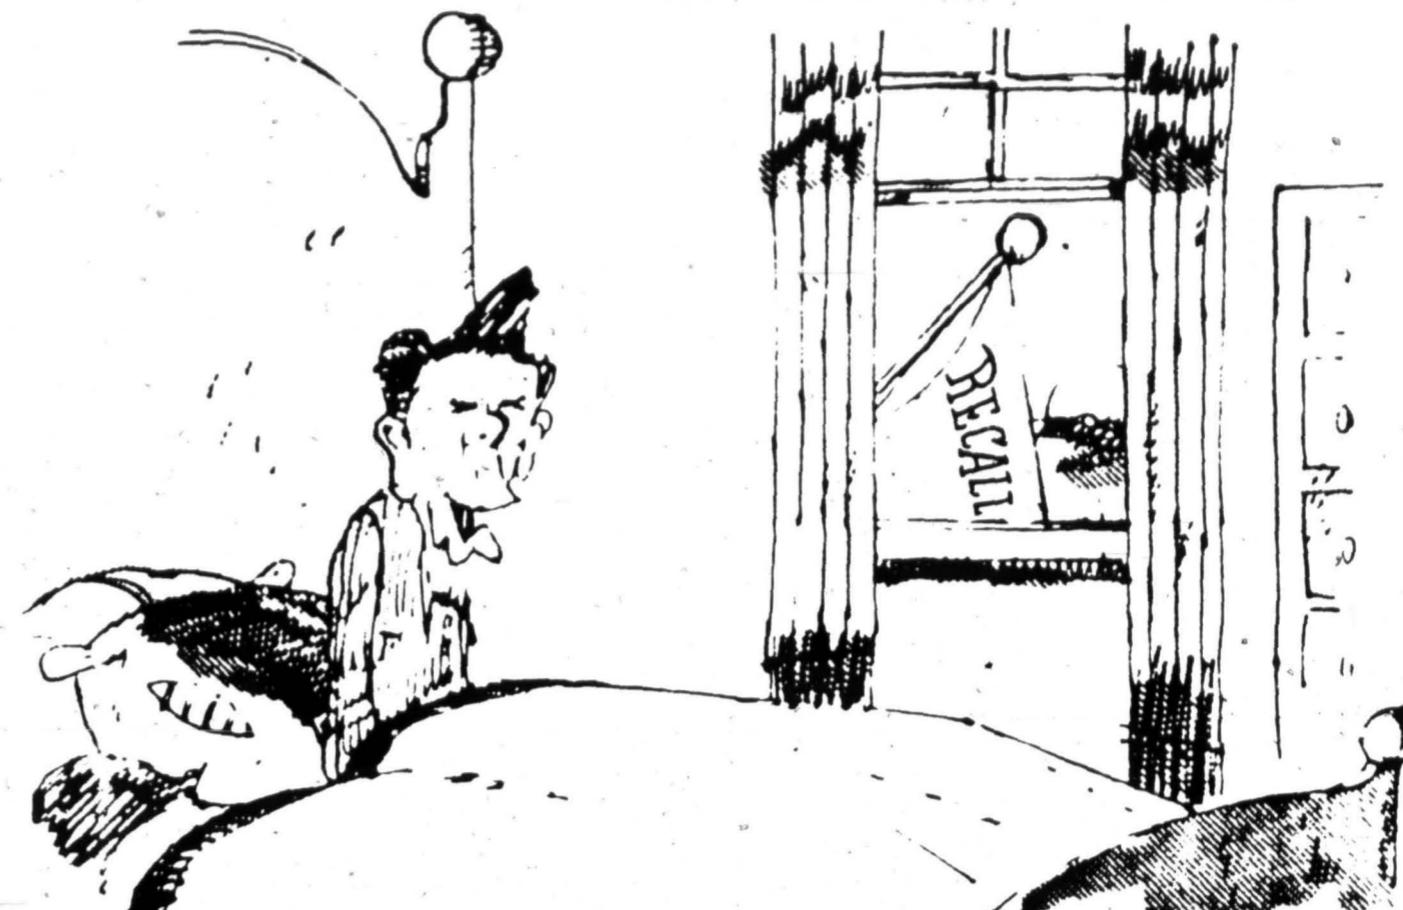

- "By the foregoing actions, produced destructive consequences and unacceptable risks to education within our district."

THE RECALL committee at the same time presented Fenton, Yates and Mrs. Bromfield with an open letter and petition that asks them to quit.

The one-page letter is signed by slightly less than 900 people and includes many of the charges levied in the notice of intention to recall.

"We are writing this open letter to persuade you that your timely resignation from the Carmel school board will prevent the painful and costly struggle of a recall campaign. If you refuse to resign, we will initiate not carry out some of his administrative duties.

YAWN - GREAT NIGHTS SLEEP! WONDER IF ANYTHING HAPPENED LAST NIGHT?

THIS POLITICAL cartoon warning that three members of the Carmel Unified School District should wake up to the very real threat of a recall appeared in a spoof newsletter sponsored by Carmel teachers. The newsletter is entitled The Carmel Pine Cone your recall," the letter states.

"We believe that the chief function of the school board is to set policy. The school board decides the what and when of education in Carmel, consistent with state law. The board specifies the goals of education and oversees their achievement.

"The administration on the other hand, manages and determines how these goals are being accomplished," the letter continued.

The letter praises the administration as "highly competent" and the teachers as "dedicated and talented."

However, the three trustees are viewed in a different light.

"Our evaluation of your performance as members of the board leads us to the disappointing conclusion that you have inappropriately attempted to assume responsibility and includes spoofed interviews with the school board members who now face recall: board President Robert Fenton and Trustees James Yates and Susan Bromfield. The identity of the cartoonist and the publisher of the spoof have been kept secret.

sibilities of administrators and neglected your role as policymakers," the committee alleges.

"That attempt and that neglect have provoked confrontations with the administration and the public. You have appeared rude, uncommunicative and secretive."

The committee also claims that actions by the three board members forced Rand to resign and have led some employees to look for other jobs.

And the committee letter charges that Fenton, Yates and Bromfield have not cooperated with staff or parents.

"Your failure to recognize the need for cooperation among the community, the faculty and the administration is a blindness which produces destructive consequences and unacceptable risks to education in our district."

Trustees refuse to resign; dismiss recall move

By MICHAEL GARDNER

THREE MEMBERS of the Carmel Unified School District Board of Education targeted for recall refuse to quit and dismiss the charges against them as hear-say, innuendo and rumor.

Board President Robert Fenton and Trustees James Yates and Susan Bromfield have chosen to fight back against the recall with a campaign of their own that cites their accomplishments and which also blasts statements made by their opponents.

Mrs. Bromfield has broken a self-imposed silence to comment on certain incidents and issues that were allegedly either mishandled or simply not done by former Supt. William Rand.

Although Mrs. Bromfield did not specifically point the finger of blame at Rand, it is clear from her statements she holds Rand accountable for many of the problems she revealed.

Fenton, Yates and Mrs. Bromfield last week were presented with a written ultimatum that they quit or face a recall battle. Trustees Doyle Clayton and Patricia Condren are not subjects of the recall campaign.

Since Fenton, Yates and Mrs. Bromfield ignored the ultimatum, the official recall petition drive to place the issue before voters will be launched next week, according to committee spokesman Richard Stott.

The committee levies a series of charges against trustees. The most cited claim is that Fenton, Yates and Bromfield secretly conspired to force Rand's resignation.

And the committee also charges that trustees — through their alleged indifference to staff — have forced the top administrators and best teachers to seek employment elsewhere.

IN PREPARED statements to the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook, Fenton, Yates and Mrs. Bromfield deny the charges and claim they are objects of a "witch hunt."

Those are the words of Mrs. Bromfield, who released the longest, most vitriolic statement.

"I am no longer willing to sit quietly while what I perceive as a witch hunt, lynch mob or similar mentality divide our school community and thus destroy our schools," Mrs. Bromfield wrote.

Mrs. Bromfield's 11-page statement focuses on five areas: her responses to the specific charges listed by the committee, Rand's resignation, the stalled teacher contract talks, her 18-point list of "concerns," and the accomplishments of the school board.

Mrs. Bromfield steadfastly contends that the board had to accept Rand's resignation because they routinely approve all others.

And if the board had wanted to "get rid of" Rand, trustees would have had to "buy out" for about $100,000 the remaining two years of his contract.

"Mr. Rand stated in his resignation that he had been considering a career change for a couple of years before this board was elected," Mrs. Bromfield wrote.

"He is pursuing an area of interest to him. He came to the board with his request and made his future plans known. I honored Mr. Rand's request and voted to accept his resignation just as I have done any time any employee requested a leave or resignation during the year.

"When an employee decides that a change is necessary for any reason, I have honored his desire."

But Mrs. Bromfield's letter does allude to many concerns the board has had about the general operations of the district.

And, that places the onus on Rand, who as superintendent was the man responsible for general administrative tasks throughout the district.

"As a board member it is my job, collectively with other board members as a board, to hold the superintendent responsible and accountable for the daily management and educational leadership of the Carmel public school system regardless of who that person is — friendly or not."

Mrs. Bromfield wrote that there are set criteria to review the superintendent.

"It is not a superficial process — he or she is nice and polite so overlook the criteria. Regardless of personalities it is professional."

"All administrators (were) out of the district at the same time — no one in charge," she wrote. "On many occasions all administrators were gone with no one left in charge. The board was not informed. Main concern is that the board is liable if anything happens."

Mrs. Bromfield also claims that Rand did not carry out some of his administrative duties.

"Review, revision and update (of board policies and procedures) has been totally ignored for a number of years."

Administrative regulations that guide administrators on how to carry out policies are "non-existent in the Carmel schools," Mrs. Bromfield wrote.

Fellow Trustee James Yates supported Mrs. Bromfield's statements and also provided this newspaper with a three-page written response to the allegations levied by recall supporters.

Yates dismissed charges that trustees have inappropriately meddled in administrative duties.

"The only time a school board edges into any other role is if we are given no choice because of a lack of execution on agreed-upon policy. This is only done as a last resort for the good of the district as per our responsibilities," Yates wrote.

Yates cited the accomplishments of the board in response to charges that the three trustees have "ignored" their role as policymakers.

Yates cited as his defense the implementation of the Peer School Excellence program and closed campus at the high school, and the Project 2000 futuristic report.

YATES ADDED that he "discovered that the district's financial resources were severely compromised by the failure to sell or list surplus real estate."

The board always has been willing to seek community and staff advice on issues, he claims.

Yates explained that the board has moved meetings to various school sites so parents do not have to drive as far. And at each meeting initially held at the school the board hears a report on activities there.

The board also added another meeting for a public hearing on the budget, he wrote.

Yates implied that some of the complaints about lack of community input are related to non-attendance at meetings.

"The board cannot be held accountable for people not attending public meetings," he wrote.

"Communication style is a two-way street. I can only communicate intelligently about what I know. When this board approached the politically-sensitive issues, it sometimes was met with minimal cooperation.

"The public interest was not being served by the board walking away from the issue, but rather aggressively pursuing it to some resolution."

Yates, too, listed some concerns he had about Rand's performance as superintendent.

He cited the real estate problem and lack of evaluations mentioned by Mrs. Bromfield.

Yates also expressed concern at what he calls a "surprising last-minute opposition to the seven-period day for Carmel Middle School prior to board vote."

And, in response that he placed the district "at risk" with his actions, Yates blasted fellow trustee Patricia Condren for allegedly revealing personnel information to the public.

"The consequences and risks to the district were caused by a member of the CUSD school board going public with a confidential personnel matter."

"When this happened, all options were dramatically reduced for all concerned. If this had not happened, the concerns would not be there in the forefront."

Board President Robert Fenton, in his response, questioned whether the recall committee has any facts to back its allegations.

"To each allegation, I ask: how, when, in what way, and based upon what data? I suggest that anyone approached to sign a recall petition ask these same questions."

"I am not a threat to education, I have done my job, my conscience is clear."

Fenton claims all of the allegations "consist of innuendo and the conditions implied are based on false rumors."

He also chides those who signed the notice of intent to recall — Robert Giraudo, John Palshaw, Reid Wagstaff and Stephanie Johnson — for their lack of attendance at board meetings.

"These individuals have rarely attended Carmel school board meetings. How can they have reached their conclusions, and on what do they base them?" Fenton questioned.

"Had they put in 12 intensive months of studying the Carmel Unified School District, as have board members, they would know that their statements are false."

School district troubles just multiply

IT PROBABLY doesn't do any good to point out the obvious fact that things in the Carmel Unified School District are in a highly unstable state of disconcert.

The fact that a majority of the Board of Education now faces the threat of a recall election over the recent resignation of Supt. William Rand is reason enough for turmoil.

Trustees James Yates and Susan Bromfield, with President Robert Fenton, are the focus of citizen anger over the Rand matter.

Although Rand has said his decision to leave public education and the Carmel district was strictly his own, many in the community believe he was pressured by Fenton and Yates to resign.

"Your conduct led to the resignation of a highly esteemed superintendent and has prompted some teachers and administrators who remain to consider alternative employment," according to a letter presented to the three trustees asking for their resignations.

The citizens who want resignations or recall have summarized board behavior by the three: "You have inappropriately attempted to assume responsibilities of administrators and neglected your role as policymakers."

Judging from the intensity of disappointment and outrage over the Rand resignation, recall backers shouldn't have too much difficulty gathering sufficient signatures (20 percent of registered voters) to qualify such a petition for the ballot.

And judging from attitudes expressed by the three trustees who are objects of this scorn, they do not intend to resign. So there may yet be a political slugfest.

At the same time, teachers are unhappy over an impasse in contract negotiations with the board. A state mediator has been called in to arbitrate the dispute, which centers over a board offer of 1 percent salary increase.

In retaliation, the Association of Carmel Teachers has stopped all extra non-paid duties, which threatens to scuttle many sporting events.

Board members have said they would like to offer teachers more money, if it were available, but have said the district can't afford any greater increase. Their words, unfortunately, haven't meant much to either teachers or upset citizens.

Much of this distress could have been avoided or mitigated through different attitudes on the part of board members. Changed attitudes, of course, could not produce more revenue for teacher salaries, but they could help smooth frustrations and ease tensions.

Unfortunately, we're forced to agree with the evaluation on the letter presented to trustees this week:

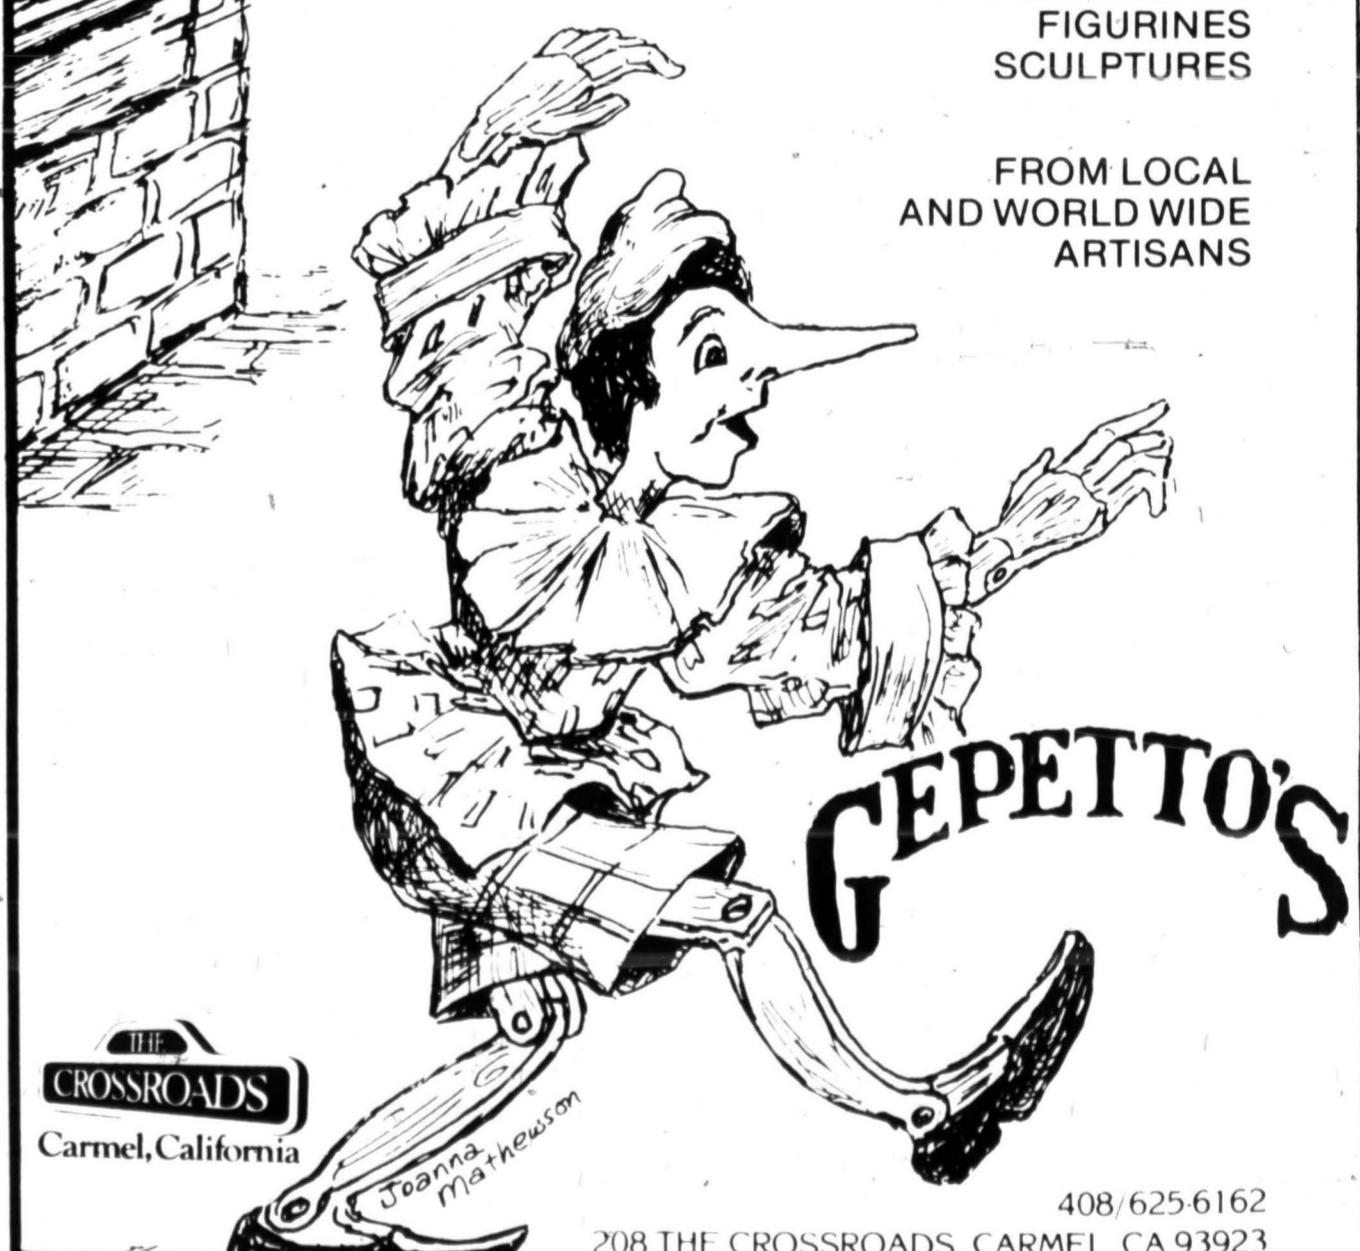

"You have acted as individuals, not as part of a deliberative body. Your failure to recognize the need for cooperation among the community, the faculty, and the administration is a blindness which produces destructive consequences and unacceptable risks to education in our district."

Water district may not grant permit for P.B. water reclamation bid

By ROBERT MISKIMON

THE MONTEREY Peninsula Water Management District may withhold a permit for the proposed $4 million Pebble Beach water reclamation project or initiate one of its own, according to manager Bruce Buel.

Although the district has those legal powers, it first wants to negotiate with the Pebble Beach Community Services District to see if some type of joint project can be developed with the Carmel Sanitary District.

Water district directors have asked for a meeting between representatives of the three agencies, but the attorney for Pebble Beach has informed the water district that his agency does not need to secure a permit for the proposed 600,000-gallon-per-day plant, according to Buel.

"They say they are not subject to a permit from our district," Buel told the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook. "Our position is they are. Our district has the power to develop a project ourselves. We could take water and pump it from Carmel to Pebble Beach, or we could form a zone and ask the residents to pay into it."

"We overlap both the Carmel and Pebble Beach districts, but the board hasn't really looked into what it could do in that area."

The Carmel Sanitary District has been forced to put on the shelf its plan for a $13

Water district has power to initiate reclamation million water reclamation project, which would generate about 1,500 acre feet per year of highly treated wastewater for golf course irrigation. A $9 million grant for the project was denied by the Environmental Protection Agency.

Pebble Beach sanitary officials have initiated their own water reclamation project, which would generate only about 580 acre feet of water per year for golf course irrigation, although the annual demand is 971 acre feet. (An acre foot is 325,581 gallons.)

The Pebble Beach Community Services District Board of Directors is to meet Oct. 26 and decide whether to direct manager Stan Kawa to meet with officials from the Carmel district and water management district.

Buel said water district directors hope the two sanitary districts — which have clashed bitterly in recent years over the Carmel reclamation project — can be persuaded to cooperate on a project that would provide more than 580 acre feet of reclaimed water per year.

"IT WOULD be counterproductive for the water district to proceed with planning of its own project at this time," Buel said. "We had hoped to discuss ways we could all benefit from a joint project. Cal-Am has expressed interest in being the distributor, if such a project were implemented."

The Pebble Beach district could not only be in violation of water management district law that requires a permit for its project, but also state public utilities law if it proceeds unilaterally, Buel said.

And water management directors have more than a passing interest in water reclamation.

"We need reclamation in addition to a new dam to meet our goals," said Director Dick Heuer of Carmel Valley. "We have a very legitimate interest in this. We're not just jumping into a political hassle."

"If we don't get at least 1,000 acre feet a year from Pebble Beach, we'll have to get it elsewhere. Our dam planning assumes 1,000 acre feet from reclamation. Our supply/demand analysis assumes a 15 percent reduction in per capita use through reclamation and conservation."

Heuer said the board hopes to act as mediator between the warring sanitary districts.

"We would hope to provide some new element to the equation so they could find some common ground," he said. "In the long run, they can't continue with a totally uncooperative attitude because they need a permit from our district."

Director Pat Bernardi of Carmel Valley said she is in favor of the water management district pursuing every alternative for reclamation as part of its total effort to meet future water needs.

"I'm in favor of doing whatever we have to do," said Mrs. Bernardi. "I hope we can work out something. The Pebble Beach project really will not irrigate all the golf courses."

It would be much more worthwhile to go with the Carmel project.

"I don't feel we're stepping out of bounds by getting involved. Fifteen hundred acre feet of water is enough to get excited about. Even with a new dam, I would like this project to go forward."

Mrs. Bernardi pointed out that even if a new dam on the upper Carmel River is constructed with an 18,000-ac.-ft. storage capacity, the annual yield in potable water will only be 5,000 acre feet. The remainder of the water will go into dam releases, river restoration, and for fisheries maintenance, she said.

"WE'RE BUYING an extremely expensive project with not that much water," she added, and pointed out that actual cost of the dam including financing is estimated at $43 million. "We've got to get serious about reclamation."

Director John Williams of Carmel Highlands said he "would consider" some type of water reclamation project initiated by the water management district to provide the amount of reclaimed water that the Carmel project would have produced.

'We need reclamation in addition to a new dam to meet our goals,' said Director Dick Heuer of Carmel Valley. 'We have a very legitimate interest in this. We're not just jumping into a political hassle.'

"The district would lose a good deal of reclamation potential if the Pebble Beach project is built," Williams said. "The Pebble Beach project would produce not enough reclaimed water."

Stan Kawa, manager of the Pebble Beach district, said the proposed reclamation project — which would be financed by the Pebble Beach Co. — would be more economical to Monterey Peninsula water users than the Carmel project.

"Who will pay the $1,800 per acre foot for the Carmel facility?" Kawa asked rhetorically. "With our project, the only ones who pay are those in Zone A, which includes about 2,300 acres in Spanish Bay."

The Pebble Beach Co. has plans to construct a 270-unit hotel, 80 condominium units and a golf course at Spanish Bay and hopes the reclamation project will facilitate that development.

"With our project, the golf course user will pay the cost," Kawa said. "Our project costs Carmel nothing, costs the user nothing, costs the water management district nothing. How could anything be done that beats those criteria? It's nothing but a plus situation."

Panel urges specific plans for large estates

THE CITY should develop "specific plans" for large parcels of private property in Carmel — such as the Gamble estate — to protect the land from overdevelopment.

That is the recommendation that the Carmel Planning Commission reached Oct. 24.

The commission has recommended that the council adopt a resolution that would allow the development of specific plans — abbreviated versions of a general plan targeted at what kinds of development will be allowed in certain areas or neighborhoods.

Details of specific plan preparations have yet to be worked out, said Assistant Planning Director Diane White.

Mrs. White said she believes specific plans would be prepared when developers propose projects on parcels of four or more contiguous lots under one ownership.

Developers would pay for the specific plan preparation, as they do now when the city requires an environmental impact report, Mrs. White explained.

The city usually contracts with a consultant to develop an EIR and then passes the fee on to the developer.

The question of whether to require specific plans for large properties was raised as the council made a vain attempt to buy the Gamble estate, a 56,000 sq. ft. property bordered by Santa Lucia and 13th avenues and Lincoln and Dolores streets.

The council for now has dropped out of the bidding at $1.1 million. Instead, the council asked the planning commission whether large properties, such as the Gamble estate, should be required to prepare specific plans.

The council believes that overdevelopment of properties of four or more lots could have a detrimental impact on the neighborhood because of increased traffic and more large homes.

In the case of the Gamble estate, the council wants a specific plan that could possibly save the large 1920s-era residence and much of the more than 50 oak trees on the property.

It also would prefer that a developer not build on all 12 lots of the Gamble property. The resolution is expected to be presented to the council in November.

The planning commission acted on more than 30 different applications Oct. 24. In some of the business-related action, commissioners:

- Rejected as "smurf" architecture a plan to remodel the Butcher Shop restaurant, north side of Ocean Avenue between Dolores and Lincoln streets.

THE TERM "smurf" architecture was coined by commissioner Richard Barrett, who opposed the remodeling.

Barrett was referring to the gnome-like cartoon television creatures called Smurfs, whose dwellings resemble toadstools.

The proposed architecture of the new restaurant frontage would be in the style of the now-under-construction Cottage Row complex, northwest corner of San Carlos Street and Sixth Avenue.

- Continued until Oct. 31 an application by the city to remodel its municipal offices, east side of Monte Verde Street between Ocean and Seventh avenues.

The council has approved about $350,000 to expand city hall for more office space and an improved council chambers.

- Continued a request from La Playa to install screening on a greenhouse at the hotel, southwest corner of Camino Real and Eighth Avenue.

• Continued an application from Hilda of Iceland to install an awning at the shop on the north side of Ocean Avenue between San Carlos and Dolores streets.

- Approved a plan by Alan Williams to install a fence and entry gates around his "Chimneys" condominium complex, southwest corner of Junipero and Fourth avenues.

• Denied a request from Bayou Cafe for an awning at the restaurant, northwest corner of Sixth Avenue and Mission Street.

- Approved a plan by Katy Curry to paint her new restaurant, formerly Judy's Pantry, west side of Lincoln Street between Ocean and Seventh avenues.

• Approved a plan for the city to build some newspaper stands near Devendorf Park. The city eventually plans to install several newspaper stands and then adopt regulations to have the current racks removed from public sidewalks.

School trustees answer charges and reveal 'concerns' with Rand

"ADMINISTRATIVE job descriptions are out of date," Mrs. Bromfield wrote. "Titles have been changed, programs cut, schools closed. Job descriptions are dangerously out of date."

"Some employees have not been evaluated in 'four-plus years, if ever,' she claims.

She also expressed concern about public relations, which she says is the superintendent's responsibility.

"In general, CUSD public relations have been totally ignored."

Mrs. Bromfield charges that "very few letters from the public with concerns were ever answered or acknowledged. This adds to poor image."

"The board was not kept informed about many outstanding staff and students that deserved superintendent and board recognition," she added.

Mrs. Bromfield also complained about the condition of the schools.

"The maintenance of the CUSD schools has been neglected for years. I see no excuse to let our facilities deteriorate. Parents have swept, raked and pulled weeds on many occasions."

Mrs. Bromfield also questions a $15,600 trust fund established "for an individual."

"A district-managed, tax-free trust fund has been established with no board action — present or prior — for retired employees' health benefit payments."

Mrs. Bromfield was referring to a unique arrangement where payments to former Business Manager Robert Zampatti were deferred to a trust fund to pay his future medical insurance premiums.

Zampatti earned the money while working on a consultant basis for the district until trustees hired current Business Manager Ed Miyasaki.

And Mrs. Bromfield voiced concern over the practice of allowing some employees to use district vehicles for home-to-job transportation.

The implementation of the seven-period day at the middle school was "a real disappointment to me," she wrote.

Trustees are upset that the administration had said there could be ways to implement the program at little cost and then the extra class was added for about $100,000.

Trustees have said they were under the assumption that they would not have to spend that much money.

Teachers have cited the seven-period day cost in their contract dispute. They say that money could have been used to give teachers another 2 percent pay hike.

MRS. BROMFIELD continued that she could not comment on "private personnel matters without violating my oath of office."

However, she wrote: "I can make some general comments about the areas I am concerned about as your elected official, as a parent, as a taxpayer and as a voter."

Mrs. Bromfield explained that the sale of vacant district-owned property in Carmel Valley has been a priority of the past two school boards. Top dollar for all properties would net the district nearly $1 million.

However, the disposal of the surplus sites has not been properly handled, she charged.

"As of July 1, 1984 it had not been properly listed," she said.

Although the letter did not specifically mention the incident, Mrs. Bromfield alluded to a problem that allegedly occurred this summer.

Rand was on vacation and apparently the necessary legal papers to list the property were not signed. Thus, the realty firm of Porter/Marquard had not listed the property for several weeks.

The subject of vacations irritates Mrs. Bromfield, who wrote that the board was never informed of when the key administrators were to leave for vacation.

And, at one time during the $750,000 high school renovation project, there was not an administrator to handle any problems, she asserted.

During one incident this summer equipment for the cafeteria had to be ordered by a specific day or it would not arrive in time for the school opening. However, apparently Rand was on vacation and nobody was left in charge to make such large purchase orders.

Mrs. Bromfield also responded to complaints that trustees purposely stalled negotiations.

"Actually the board received the ACT (Association of Carmel Teachers) proposal late last spring. Our negotiator has been available throughout the summer to meet and negotiate.

"The administration informed the board late in June that the teachers wanted the month of July free and did not want negotiations.

"Further, the board members and chairman requested a prioritized budget and information last spring. The administration presented a timeline that didn't address a budget study until summer. It was felt that clearer information would be available (then)."

At 'Star Wars' forum

Physicist says U.S. vulnerable

By ELAINE TAYLOR

'IT IS THE national policy of this country to keep our population vulnerable to attack by the Soviet Union."

Such was the assertion of physicist J. Peter Vajk at a discussion of "Star Wars" technology at a New Forum meeting in Carmel Oct. 15.

Tracing some of the history leading up to the national policy of "mutually assured destruction" or MAD, Vajk said the 1960s Cuban missile crisis created a perception that the United States was vulnerable to nuclear attack by the Soviets.

This led to a state of national fear, and fear leads to strange behaviors, one of them being rationalization.

"We rationalized that state — that condition of vulnerability — into a belief that the vulnerability of our population and the vulnerability of the Soviet population was the key to security," he said. As a result, the United States adopted the policy known as MAD.

Vajk was introduced to the 120 people attending the New Forum program as one of the early proponents of peaceful uses of space as a place for people to live and work. He received his Ph.D. in theoretical physics from Princeton University in 1968. Since then he has carried out work in relativistic astrophysics and nuclear weapons effects. He has been involved in studies of policy and technology issues of military space systems.

As a proponent of "Star Wars," a space-based strategic defensive weapons system, Vajk contrasted the current policy of deterrence to a defensive posture proposed by President Reagan in a speech on March 23, when he challenged engineers and scientists to apply their ingenuity to the development of a system to intercept and destroy enemy missiles before they reach our soils or that of our allies.

Vajk pointed out that our present policy of deterrence means simply: "If your opponent hits you, you are going to retaliate so badly that he'll wish he'd never thought of it." Defense means: "If you try to hit me, I have the means to prevent you from doing damage to me but without needing to harm you. I simply can put something between the force you are throwing at me and myself — a shield, if you will."

A defensive weapons system is the essence of "Star Wars." "We have a grand total of 350 fighter interceptors available and ready to intercept an airborne attack by Soviet bombers and missiles," Vajk said. Our radar system has vast gaps and is "very leaky. The Soviets would have very little difficulty penetrating down, say through the Canadian Rockies, into the central part of the United States with minimal chance of detection, let alone of interception."

FOR EVERY ruble the Soviet Union spends on offensive weapons, an equal amount is spent on defensive measures. Vajk pointed out that these include anti-ballistic missile systems, air defense systems that are the most extensive and comprehensive in the world today, and civil defense measures. "The United States, on the other hand, spends approximately three cents on defensive weaponry for each $100 it spends on offensive weaponry," according to Vajk.

Vajk said one of the difficulties is the failure of its proponents to recognize the increased improvements in weapons development. With miniaturization of components and increasingly sophisticated electronics and guidance systems, the accuracy of nuclear weapons has improved significantly since World War II.

To achieve the same military objective of the past, the yield of today's warhead can be vastly reduced because of this increase in accuracy. "If accuracy increases by a factor of 10, then the yield of that warhead to achieve the same objective decreases by a factor of about 300," Vajk said.

"Twenty-five years ago we were in greater danger of a nuclear winter than we are today." If the production of new systems with smaller warheads is halted, we will remain frozen at the present level of warhead yields. If ever used, these current warheads "will result in much greater collateral damage than if newer weapons were used."

During a question-and-answer period, Vajk said the objective of "Star Wars" technology is to place a space-based system of defense into orbit that is capable of destroying enemy missiles before they are armed — that is, while they are in the booster phase. "The United States has the technology to accomplish that," he said.

Robert M. Bowen, president of the Institute for Space and Security Studies, will be the next speaker at the New Forum meeting scheduled for Nov. 5. His topic will be: "Death Star — Why 'weapons in space' implies holocaust." Bowen was director of advanced space programs development for the Air Force Space Division before his retirement from the Air Force.

Board to ponder Big Sur, Pebble Beach projects

MAJOR DEVELOPMENTS in two of the world's most scenic areas — Big Sur and Pebble Beach — will be topics of discussion by the Monterey County Board of Supervisors Tuesday, Oct. 30, in the county courthouse in Salinas.

At 11 a.m., supervisors will discuss plans for the El Sur Ranch in Big Sur that include development of a hotel, restaurant and residential units in return for opening about six miles of scenic coast for public use.

At 2:30 p.m., supervisors are expected to make a final decision on the Pebble Beach Co. application for a 270-unit hotel, golf course and 80-unit condominium complex in the Spanish Bay area of Pebble Beach.

The Monterey County Planning Commission Oct. 10 approved a plan for the 7,133-acre El Sur Ranch in Big Sur that includes provisions for land to be donated or purchased for public use.

Ranch owner Jim Hill plans to develop between 53 and 98 residential units scattered throughout the ranch. A 100-room hotel would be built on the west side of Highway 1 in the pine and cypress tree grove near False Point Sur.

A restaurant also is planned for construction at the mouth of the Little Sur River.

The working ranch also will continue operations.

The California Coastal Conservancy has agreed to buy, for about $1 million, 1,200 acres of the ranch along the Little Sur River. The long beach that eventually will be opened for public use is included in that property.

Another 1,100 acres will be donated as a scenic easement with no development allowed.

And 890 acres of Redwood grove will be donated to the Save the Redwood League.

The El Sur Ranch property is on the east and west sides of Highway 1 from the Big Sur River south almost to Bixby Bridge north.

Supervisors will be asked at that meeting to approve the development agreement and overall plan in concept.

Specific working plans for the residences, restaurant and hotel are to be presented later

THE MINED-OUT sand dunes at Spanish Bay must be restored before Pebble Beach Co. can begin development of its 270-room hotel, 80-unit condominium and golf course complex. Congress Road residents protest the plan to haul the sand through their

to the planning commission.

The environmental impact report (EIR) for the El Sur project is expected to be presented to the county planning commission at 2:30 p.m. Oct. 31 in the county courthouse in Salinas.

The EIR eventually will have to be certified by the supervisors.

In a separate action, supervisors are to consider the Spanish Bay development.

Supervisors conducted a public hearing on the project Oct. 16, but continued action at the request of Zoning Administrator Dale Ellis.

ELLIS suggested the postponement to give supervisors an opportunity to mull over the large project, further complicated because Spanish Bay is the first application to be considered under the new combined development permit.

A combined development permit allows county officials to review the entire project at one time.

Previously, the hotel, golf course and condominiums would have been reviewed as separate permit applications at different times.

At the hearing, several Pebble Beach residents reiterated their concern about the trucks that will haul sand to replenish the Spanish Bay site.

They are concerned about the noise and safety problems the trucks will cause on Congress Road. It is expected to take up to five months to complete the replenishment project.

Pacific Grove City Councilwoman Madelyn Sloan also spoke about the traffic issue. She said the city will keep close watch on traffic to ensure that the mitigation measures incorporated in the environmental impact report are followed and are effective.

The project is expected to be finished in September of 1986.

THE VALLEY SAGE

BY VICTORIA ANDREWS

Ed Haber: a man for all seasons

AS THE BREACH continues to widen in the Valley as elsewhere between "developers" and "environmentalists," it is both refreshing and exciting to discover someone who fits the appellation of environmental developer.

Such a person is Edgar Haber, president and chief executive officer of Green Meadows, Inc. which does business as Quail Lodge and Carmel Valley Country Club. The development — often referred to inclusively as Quail Lodge — shows a masterful awareness of the value of careful land use, though it was conceived at a time when high-rise mentality was at its zenith.

"Most people just think, 'How much money can I make?' but they make more money in the long run if they do it well," Haber explained. "It's hard to convince people to design for less use."

Less use, in the case of Haber's enormously successful resort, which operates at 80 percent capacity (peak preference in the hotel business), refers to the greenbelt concept — a revolutionary idea at the time Quail Lodge began operation in the late 1960s.

The land on which Haber and his four partners developed the lodge and private homes around the golf course is 90 percent open space, with the golf course and its 10 lakes as the focal point of the development. The result is a serene, low-key environment in which hundreds of wild ducks, geese and — naturally — quail are more in evidence than people.

The inspiration for the design — both environmental and architectural — came from the old Royal Lahaina on Maui; Pauma Valley in Southern California; and Little Dix Bay in the Virgin Islands. Haber visited and photographed resorts around the world both for ideas to emulate and to clarify what he wanted to avoid.

The esthetic success of those three renowned haunts was translated to local taste and materials by architect Charles Rose, who designed the lodge and houses, and Terry Jones Haber, who masterminded the interior design.

HABER WAS already a long-time resident of the Valley before he began to develop the land on the site of the old Morrow dairy, owned by a brother of Anne Morrow Lindbergh.

A San Francisco native, he arrived here in 1946, looking, he said, to see what the area didn't have and provide it.

One noticeable lack was a newspaper, so he started one — the Carmel Valley News — which began as a modest mimeographed sheet and later evolved into the Carmel Valley Outlook. Also, there was no liquor store, so Haber the entrepreneur opened the Grapevine, which still operates at its original location in the Village.

Entertainment was a bit scarce in the then-remote Carmel Valley Village, so concurrently with the newspaper and the liquor store, Haber started a small movie theater behind the Los Laureles Lodge. Of his initial ventures, that was the only flop.

Haber recalled that the Village had more charm in the old days. It was designed by Byington Ford, a relative of S.F.B. Morse and Haber's partner. The store fronts were painted with Bruce Ariss' murals depicting the wares for sale inside.

WHEN ED Haber is not overseeing the operation of the lodge and country club, or attending meetings of the many community organizations to which he belongs, he pursues his avocation as what he terms "the odd-ball fire buff."

He was a volunteer fireman and board member of the Upper Carmel Valley Fire Department until 1970 when he moved his affiliation to the Mid-Valley department, of which he is chairman of the board and an ever-ready trained volunteer assistant.

Haber travels around in a unique fire and rescue vehicle — a Mercedes station wagon equipped with a scanner, a two-way radio that is definitely state-of-the-art, and a scaled-down assortment of emergency tools. A trio of golden retrievers replaces the traditional dalmatian fire dog.

As we toured the premises, Haber kept a keen ear to the scanner for any disaster that might require his help, and he discussed one of his present projects, the Monterey County Emergency Response Committee.

There are as yet no paramedics working in the county, but the committee is establishing a network of mutual aid coordinated among the sheriff's department, the fire department and the hospitals.

Haber is also a member of the board of directors at Community Hospital where, he said, the nurses are being trained to give radio instruction to the teams at the site of an emergency. Occasionally, said Haber, a complaint is voiced that equipment such as the "jaws of life" is not cost-effective. "Cost effective! It is cost-effective to the guy who would die without it! I don't want to hear that again," Haber exclaimed.

A NEW Haber development project is in the wings, one which has yet to gain county approval, as the Carmel Valley Master Plan is not yet operative and zoning approval has been withheld accordingly.

However, Quail Meadows, the proposed development west of Quail Lodge, looks like it's bound to be another of his many successes. A blueprint tour with Haber's associate Ken Gardner showed the same thoughtful and ecologically sensitive design that characterizes the land they have already touched.

The 614 acres formerly known as Porter's Bowl was purchased five years ago by Haber and the Green Meadows Corp., which consists of 40 local stockholders. They bought the property from Stuyvesant Fish, who had purchased it from early land developer Frank Porter in 1930.

There are two aspects to the proposed development. One is a 40-unit self-contained seminar center called Quail West, designed by Rose in the same style as the lodge and club house and, like them, nearly invisible from surrounding areas. The other portion will have a maximum of 60 lots, which will average 10 acres each.

The environmental impact report for the project was certified just before the building moratorium in 1980, and Haber and Gardner said they believe they have already addressed the issues of potential controversy.

"We police ourselves," Haber said. "We don't want to see it overcrowded. Too much traffic would disturb the tranquility." He added that they use local labor and expect that the operation of Quail Meadows/Quail West will provide at least 40 full-time jobs for the community, while asking for virtually no services.

The Sage asked Haber what he would like to see in the Valley if the decision were his. He responded that, unrealistically, he would add nothing but would remove some of what's already here.

And realistically? "Do it better, keep it small, and make sure it's well-done."

CARMEL VALLEY PERSPECTIVE

Vanessa Klettke stars in fall riding event

VANESSA KLETTKE of Carmel Valley from Rushwood Riding School was the Monterey Peninsula star last week in Sacramento at the Rancho Murietta Equine Complex Fall Horse Show.

Not only did Miss Klettke bring home three reserve show championships, but she was the only junior rider to compete against and place above several top professional California riders in the WGA Futures class.

The WGA Futures class, which is just one level below Grand Prix jumping, is open to both professional and amateur riders of all ages. Miss Klettke — riding her jumper LA — was one of only seven riders to complete the tough course, which featured five-foot jumps, clean. She placed fifth in the work-offs. And she placed first in junior jumpers age 17 and under.

In other events, Miss Klettke and her hunter — Kare Fre Victory — brought home a bundle of ribbons. She was named Pacific Coast Horsemen's Association Reserve Show Champion, the American Horse Show Association Reserve Show Champion and the Nor Cal Reserve Show Champion.

She also won firsts in limit hunters, open equitation age 12 to 14 and the Nor Cal medal competition. She placed second in junior hunters age 14 and under, junior hunters under saddle, and the ASPCA-McClay medal competition, and won ribbons in five other classes.

In the NorCal medal finals, Rushwood had four riders out of the 22 equestrians who qualified statewide. Their placement in the finals: Vanessa Klettke, third; Dana Bridge, eighth; Kelly Kurz, ninth; and Denize Borges, 12th.

Miss Bridge — riding her horse Curtain Call — placed second in open low hunters, took third in junior hunters age 15 to 17 and won ribbons in four other events. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Dalsemer of Carmel Valley.

Rushwood riders secure top ranks at medal final shows

Vanessa Klettke of Carmel Valley and Janice Burke of Monterey led a team of Rushwood Riding School equestrians who picked up top honors Oct. 6-7 at medal final horse shows in Los Angeles, Santa Barbara and Sacramento.

In Los Angeles, Miss Klettke and her jumper, LA, competed against more than 50 of the West Coast's top junior and amateur owner/riders at the Fifth Annual Foxfield Jumping Derby. She was one of only nine riders to complete the grueling 22-fence course clean and placed sixth in the jump-offs which presented water jumps, banks, and ditches with heights of more than four feet. Miss Klettke is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Klettke of Carmel Valley.

Mrs. Burke, riding Within the Budget, was the only rider from the Monterey Peninsula qualified to compete in the coveted Foxfield Medal finals, which drew amateur competitors from several western states. She finished with a total of 304 points in two rounds and placed high in the 45-entry field.

In Santa Barbara, at the 40th Annual Fall Open Horse Show, Terry Stumbaugh — riding Mary's Bell — was named show champion Welsh pony hunter and reserve show champion open pony hunter. She won the pony hunter over fences class, took ribbons in 11 other events, and placed fifth in the Onondarka Medal Competition. Terry, on her Pony Melody in G, won the western pleasure event and placed third in three pleasure driving classes.

In Sacramento, at the California State Horsemen's Association Show, Patty Stumbaugh — riding Dragon Wings — took firsts in equitation age 11 and under and hunters under saddle. On her jumper, Flight Instructor, she placed second in jumpers age 11 and under, took sixth in jumpers age 17 and under and received fourth in the CHSA medal competition. The Stumbaugh twins are the daughters of Dr. Susan Stumbaugh of Carmel Valley.

Cassie Griffith, riding Come Fly Me owned by Toni Venza, was named Sacramento show champion high point age 11 and under after she won firsts in both hunter and jumper classes and took third in jumpers age 17 and under and winning ribbons in three other events. She is the daughter of Ms. Pat O'Neill of Carmel Valley.

Other Rushwood riders who won ribbons at the Sacramento show included Mia James, riding Tin Soldier; her mother Mrs. Ellen James, riding her horse Free Style; and Denize Borges, riding War Tower owned by Kathy Albright.

Water board to consider river EIR

DIRECTORS of the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District are scheduled to consider certification of an environmental impact report on the proposed Carmel River management Program Monday, Oct. 29.

The board is to meet at 7:30 p.m. in the Monterey City Council chambers.

The EIR was drafted by Environmental Science Associates of San Francisco, and the final version will incorporate responses to written comments on the document collected during the public review period.

The Boronda erosion control project — the first increment in the proposed $150,000-per-year Carmel River management program — would entail about two miles of willow plantings and revetments.

Some willows will be planted this fall as the initial phase of the project. Once established, their roots will help stabilize erosion-prone channel banks. The revetments are intended to contain the river within a path toward the center of the channel.

The area included within the Boronda project extends from about one-half mile downstream of Robles del Rio bridge to almost one mile downstream of Boronda Road bridge.

Water district directors already have authorized the expenditure of up to $10,000 to initiate willow plantings this year, although the total river management program — with a still undecided financing mechanism — is not expected to go before voters until next spring.

Willow planting is expected to commence Nov. 13, according to water district manager Bruce Buel.

Group wants library plan on ballot

THE PROPOSED expansion of Harrison Memorial Library onto Lincoln Street should be placed before the voters.

So says a group of residents and business people that has presented to Mayor Charlotte Townsend a 306-signature petition opposed to the library expansion.

Meanwhile, Lincoln Street between Ocean and Sixth avenues is to be temporarily closed Oct. 25-28 so the city can gauge the impact of a closure on traffic in the area.

The city has plans to build the approximately $1.2 million, 8,000 sq. ft. expansion directly on Lincoln Street. A pathway between the expansion and Pine Inn shops would connect Ocean and Sixth avenues.

The opposition group met with Mayor Townsend Oct. 16. The mayor has been asked to circulate and discuss the petition at the Nov. 6 council session.

Members of the group who met with the mayor included Jane Nieman, Heinz Fanderl, Dale Leidig, Glenn Leidig, Marion Leidig, Olga Neri, Howard Nieman, Jr., Julie Renz, Norman Rial, Dio Roberts, Dorothea Roberts and Satoru Yoshizato.

The opponents told the mayor that if the council does not want to place the matter before the voters, then the expansion plan at least should be included in the upcoming questionnaire.

"There is intense public opposition to the council's proposal in this matter," opposition leader Mrs. Nieman wrote to the mayor.

"The reasons are varied; all are important and range from scenic considerations and costs to the Carmel taxpayer to increased traffic and congestion."

The group is concerned that the city rejects private projects — such as actor Clint Eastwood's proposed two-story San Carlos Street project — yet seems ready to approve a development that will have similar adverse impacts on the town.

"We cannot understand why the library annex project is not being subjected to the same criteria as projects proposed by private developers and others," the letter states.

"Further, a number of major issues, including increased operating costs, public safety, library space needs, alternative sites and the costs to be borne by Carmel taxpayers in building the annex, have not been addressed in the public domain to the extent we consider appropriate."

THE GROUP is concerned that a closed Lincoln Street will cause traffic congestion problems, erase needed parking spaces and reduce visibility for area businesses.

The letter written to Mayor Townsend questions whether the city merely is using local tax dollars to finance a library for people who don't live in Carmel.

And they argue an expanded and more attractive library will draw an increased number of out-of-the-city patrons, which will cause more traffic and parking problems.

Opponents also question why the city balked at plans to build the annex on the corner just because the underground parking garage would have cost $100,000 more than estimated.

The city had adopted a plan to build an annex on three city-owned lots on the northwest corner of Lincoln Street and Sixth Avenue. Those plans were dropped after the underground parking garage became too costly.

Opponents claim that the cost of the library probably has risen $100,000 since the council dropped its plans about three years ago.

And the group complains that the city has no plans for the corner property. Currently the property has been used for storage of city materials. Most of the materials on the corner are for the under-construction Piccadilly Park.

The two business people most expected to be affected by the closing of the street remain in opposition to the expansion proposal.

Judy Brooke, manager of the First Interstate Bank on the corner, and Satoru Yoshizato, owner of the Tokyo Gift Shop that fronts Lincoln Street, both said parking is their concern.

"They still haven't made any provisions for parking. If the street is going to be closed, there's not going to be any parking," Ms. Brooke said.

Yoshizato also is worried about the safety and size of the proposed walkway.

"The pathway to me is an alley. I'm worried about the safety and possibility of crime at night," he said.

The city has mulled a variety of plans for additional parking to replace the approximately nine spaces that will be lost if Lincoln Street is closed.

One plan is to add 20-minute spaces on the north and south end of Lincoln Street after it closes and the sidewalks are extended. As part of that plan, a few one-hour spaces in the vicinity would be converted to 20-minute time slots.

The original corner annex property also could be the site of a parking lot or a combined park and underground parking garage, the city has suggested.

Councilman Robert Stephenson has prepared a plan to provide more than 20 spaces on the lot screened from view by shrubbery. It would also include public restrooms.

The council has made no firm commitment on extra parking should Lincoln Street be closed for the library expansion.

Rand says he's willing to stand on his record

FORMER SUPT. William Rand's response to concerns about his performance while in the Carmel Unified School District is: "I will stand on my record."

Rand, who resigned Oct. 8, is the focal point in a recall campaign targeted against school board President Robert Fenton and Trustees James Yates and Susan Bromfield.

Mrs. Bromfield since has broken her self-imposed silence and revealed a series of "concerns" about the way certain issues and projects have been handled.

In his written response to those concerns, Rand told the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook:

"Over the past four years the major issues confronting the district have been aggressively addressed. We have successfully:

- Managed our financial resources so as to maintain quality programs despite Prop. 13 cut backs in funds and declining enrollment;
- Consolidated our elementary schools from five to three schools (Carmel and Woods Schools were closed);
- Sold one elementary school (Woods) and used the proceeds to renovate the high school ($750,000);

• Hired strong and competent administrators (Marsha Kading-Kelly, high school; Jim Kohnke, Tularcitos school; Frank Lynch, middle school; and Rosemary Montgomery, River School);

- Raised student test scores to among the highest in the state;
- Added instructional periods to the middle school (from five to six classes per day and then from six to seven periods);
- Initiated a Peer School Excellence program at the high school;
- Improved school discipline and climate throughout the district;
- Strengthened our academic programs enabling our graduates to qualify for prestigious colleges and universities.

- "I will stand on my record."

17-MILE DRIVE WAS LONGER

The original 17-Mile Drive, constructed 50 years ago, began and ended at the old Hotel Del Monte, which is now the Naval Postgraduate School in Monterey. Initially the drive encircled the entire Monterey Peninsula, but now it is routed only through the scenic Del Monte Forest.

Carmel developer faces snag on low-cost apartment units

SEVERAL LOW and moderate income Carmel residents appear on the verge of losing their $300-per-month studio apartments unless the city steps in.

Developer Craig McFarland has submitted plans to demolish the 12-unit Mayfair House apartment complex and realtor's office and replace it with condominiums and retail spaces on the 15,000 sq. ft. property, the southeast corner of Lincoln Street and Seventh avenue.

The proposal, which had not been completed by press deadline, is to be presented to the planning commission when it meets at 4 p.m. Nov. 14 at city hall.

McFarland, who owns two commercial buildings in town and now is developing the Cottage Row retail complex, recently purchased the property for an unspecified amount from O.W. Irwin of Pebble Beach.

But his plan for a two-story condominium and retail complex with underground parking has run into a roadblock that McFarland says he did not know existed when he bought the property.

Apparently several of the residents are classified as low or moderate income, which means they earn about $18,000 or less annually.

And the city code — backed by state law — states that a developer must provide an equal number of low and moderate-cost housing units within three miles of the coastal zone before being allowed to replace the units with higher-priced housing.

McFarland said he was not informed of the requirement until an interview with the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook. Later asked what he plans to do to meet the requirement, McFarland replied: "I have not had a chance to be able to study the situation."

City Assistant Planning Director Diane White said many developers may not be aware of certain city laws because they do not check with the city before they develop a plan.

Mrs. White suggests that any developer should first review concept plans with the planning staff so any potential problems can be ironed out before the developer spends time and money on a comprehensive proposal.

Some of the residents of Mayfair House obviously would like to stay in their $300-a-month studio apartments that have patios, fireplaces and small kitchens.

SPIRULINA: THE FOOD OF THE FUTURE IS HERE NOW...
 Spirulina Plankton is the most basic substance in the whole food chain. Spirulina's high-quality protein contains 18 of 22 amino acids required for health — and all eight essential amino acids in the correct proportion. Protein such as this is rarely found in non-animal sources, so Spirulina is popular with vegetarians. And Spirulina's protein, which provides sustaining energy to the human body, is up to 95 percent digestible as compared with beef's 20 percent. Several kinds of unusual proteins called biliproteins which occur naturally in our own bodies are found in Spirulina. Spirulina is low in calories, fats and sodium and amazingly high in efficient proteins (containing 60 to 71 percent) and all the cell salts and enzymes for body metabolism.

Trial set Nov. 26 on Big Sur logging

A TRIAL has been set for Monday, Nov. 26, in Monterey County Superior Court on the question of access to 35 acres of redwoods near Big Sur that the Scarborough Lumber Co. wants to log.

Judge Richard Silver set that date to decide whether the Santa Cruz County lumber company has an easement to permit logging in an area near the New Camaldoli Hermitage.

Monks at the retreat have sued Scarborough to halt the logging because they contend the harvest would disturb their tranquility and cause serious environmental damage to the redwoods and in the watershed of nearby Lime Kiln Creek.

Zad Leavy, attorney for the monks, said a temporary restraining order issued by Judge Silver against logging will remain in effect until all issues raised in the lawsuit are resolved.

Scarborough has received permission from the state Department of Forestry to log the area, but is restrained from doing so by the court order. Other issues raised in the monks' lawsuit involve nuisance questions, whether the logging is an appropriate use of the land, and constitutional concerns.

The Benedictine monks who live in the hermitage have been joined in their legal battle by the S.H. Cowell Foundation of Santa Cruz County — a private foundation which owns 630 acres near Lucia.

Monterey County and adjacent landowner William Earl also have joined the lawsuit. The action contends, among other things, that the state Forest Practices Act is unconstitutional and violates state environmental protection laws.

Constitutional issues raised in the lawsuit also are pending in other lawsuits filed by Santa Clara, Santa Cruz, and Marin counties. The state legislature also is considering amendments to the Forest Practices Act.

for five months; and Jeffrey Harrison, a three-month-long tenant, talked with the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook last week about McFarland's plans.

Both said several residents already have moved out, including Stanley's 92-year-old grandmother who now lives at Hacienda Carmel in Carmel Valley.

"It was a trauma for her," Stanley said. "Mostly it's old people or young people just starting out who live there."

And Stanley said he has an 87-year-old aunt living in the complex who also hopes she will not have to move.

"Right now she's just waiting to see what will happen."

Stanley and Harrison claim the vacating is in response to a letter former owner Irwin sent to the residents June 25.

Stanley said the letter "implies that we have to move, but we haven't heard anything yet. A lot of people have moved out because of the letter from Mr. Irwin."

That letter was the only indication they have that the complex was in the process of being sold. They say they do not know when they will have to move out.

"An agreement to sell the property known as Mayfair House has been signed. The sale probably will be completed on Nov. 30, 1984. The purchaser intends to build residential units on the property," stated the letter.

"This advance notice is being given so that you will have plenty of time to make other arrangements," Irwin wrote.

"The change of ownership is being made with regret. If I can be of any assistance, please let me know," he concluded.

Stanley and Harrison want to stay in Carmel, since they both work at the mouth of Carmel Valley, but are afraid they will not be able to because of the high rents.

The pair acknowledge that McFarland has property rights to build. But they wish he would consider allowing them to stay.

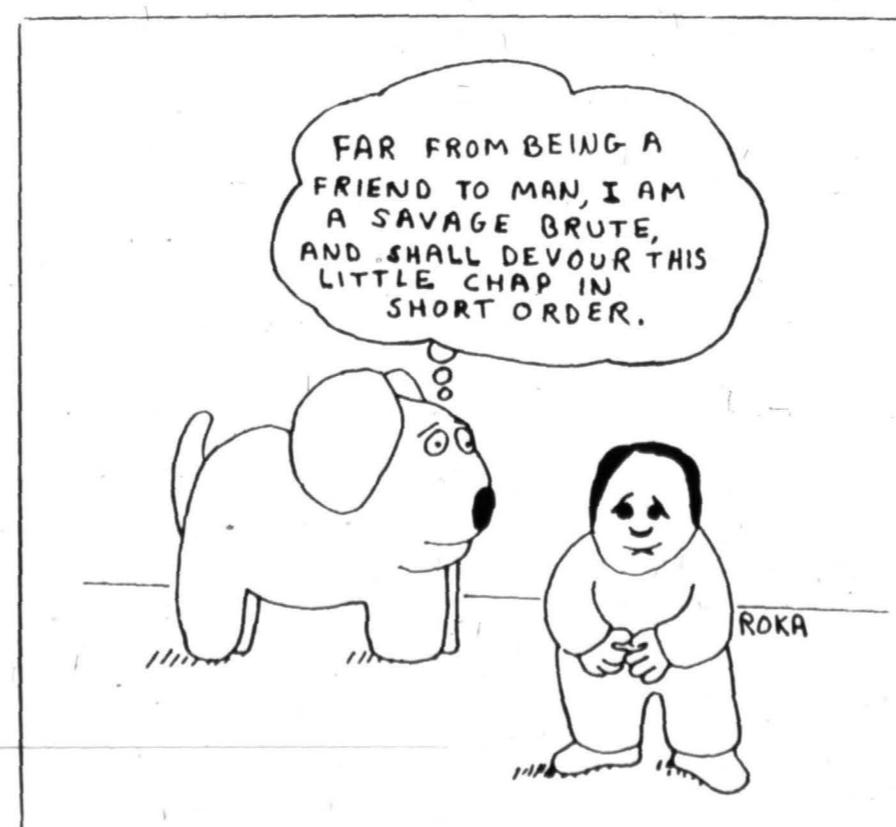

"There's no point in fighting it. He bought it," Stanley said. "I wouldn't mind paying a little more rent. But if it's cost prohibitive, I'll have to move."

"There's nothing wrong with Mr. McFarland having a fair profit. He just has people to consider."

Hawkins agrees to act longer as superintendent

TIME — just weeks ago an enemy — suddenly has become the ally of the Carmel Unified School District Board of Education in its search for a new superintendent.

Trustees and Interim Supt. Rich Hawkins appear willing to continue the temporary arrangement for several months until a nationwide search for a new superintendent is completed.

Instructional Director Hawkins and the board had reached an agreement by which he would act as superintendent while the board searched for a new superintendent to replace William Rand, who resigned Oct. 8.

But during a special study session on the recruitment procedures for a new superintendent at the central office Oct. 22, Hawkins said: "If I have the support of the board, I'm willing to extend my time."

Hawkins' apparent willingness to act as superintendent longer is a key factor in the board search for Rand's replacement.

Several officials have voiced concern that the district would not get top candidates now because most good superintendents would not leave their district in the middle of the school year.

And trustees admit that the current political turmoil in the district is not conducive to drawing good applicants.

Board President Robert Fenton and Trustees Susan Bromfield and James Yates are the subjects of a recall campaign. (See related story, this issue.)

And the board and teachers have called for a state mediator to work out a settlement in the contract dispute.

Yates suggested the board continue its search for an advisor to recruit applicants, but "until some of these issues in the community are settled" trustees should move slowly on a proposed starting date for the new superintendent.

"We just won't get that many people," he said. "I just think there's going to be a lot of turmoil here until we get things sorted out."

Trustee Doyle Clayton agreed: "We don't look attractive right now. We have turmoil within the board structure. We have turmoil in the district...we just don't look good right now."

Yates said he supports keeping Hawkins for several more months "100 percent." The other trustees voted in agreement, although no formal action was taken.

Trustees also briefly discussed the qualifications they want in a new superintendent, but withheld action for a later meeting.

Trustees appeared to reach a consensus that they want a candidate to have central office and teaching experience, hold a master's degree, and be eligible for a California school administrator's credential in case the applicant is from out of state.

Trustees did not decide on a salary, although it appears the pay will be in the neighborhood of $50,000 annually.

The board also plans later to decide on a recruitment consultant, which is to cost between $5,000 and $8,000.

The consultant does all of the advertising for the job and screens applicants.

Sanitary district to ask state to increase capacity

PROSPECTS appear favorable that the state may permit the Carmel Sanitary District to increase its treatment capacity from 2.4 to 3 million gallons per day.

Manager Michael Zambory was authorized by the board of directors at an Oct. 18 meeting in Carmel City Hall to apply to the state Regional Water Quality Control Board for the increase.

"We have the physical capacity but not the authorization from the state," Zambory explained to the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook. "If this is approved, it could mean rescission of the annexation moratorium."

The effect of that action could be that areas such as the Point Lobos Ranch, the Clint Eastwood property in Carmel Valley recently donated to Monterey County for senior housing, and other areas in and around Carmel Valley could be annexed to the district service area, Zambory said.

And Zambory informed directors that the State Water Resources Control Board has scheduled for consideration at its Dec. 5 meeting granting permission to the district to continue or increase discharge of treated effluent into Carmel Bay.

Since Carmel Bay was declared an Area of Special Biological Significance nearly a decade ago, the Carmel district has been faced with a state cease-and-desist order to stop discharge into bay waters during certain months of the year.

"We've discussed this with the state and they're considering rescinding their resolution," Zambory said. "They are potentially going to allow us to discharge into the ASBS and to increase our discharge. This is because of the fact we have been monitoring the bay for nine years and there has been no harm to anything except the mussels, which have picked up some silver. We think that's because of the Carmel River."

Because of the state order, the sanitary district developed a $13 million water reclamation project that would sell highly purified reclaimed water for golf course irrigation as an alternative to discharge in Carmel Bay.

But that project has been stalled by the denial by the Environmental Protection Agency of a $9 million grant.

BUSINESS BEAT BY NANCY HILLS

A little bit of Italy

ITALY with its warm, friendly people is one of my favorite European countries, so I must admit I am a bit prejudiced toward anything that makes me feel that I have returned to that charming place.

I felt that way last week when I interviewed Nuccio Falchi about his new Italian restaurant in the Barnyard — Pomodoro Trattoria.

Falchi, who has been in this country for two years, explained what a trattoria is.

"A trattoria is a country style restaurant where you get a regional type of food. It comes from the horse and buggy days when people would travel from place to place slowly. They could stop at a trattoria and get good food, good wine and a friendly but simple atmosphere."

"As time passed, it has developed into different styles. Pomodoro is the more sophisticated type, but still a place where you can get good food and good wine for reasonable prices and find a friendly, informal atmosphere — no jackets or ties needed."

Milan, the Italian city Falchi comes from, is the region featured in his trattoria.

"Milan is the business and fashion capital of Italy," Falchi said. "The people living in the area are more sophisticated, so the Milanese cuisine is the most refined cuisine in Italy. The emphasis is not so much on quantity as on quality."

"We use the best quality ingredients available on the market. The fantasy of the chef turns the typical pasta dish into something special. We also will have risotto, a rice cooked in a special manner and in as many ways, if not more, as pasta. It is a manner of cooking that originated in Northern Italy around Milan."

"We will also feature Italian specialties, such as pizza, cooked in a wood burning stove. This pizza is different from the pizza usually served in the United States which has a very thick crust. The crust on this pizza is very thin, very crispy with all the really Italian toppings like peeled, fresh tomatoes; imported Mozzarella cheese; fresh basil; and Italian prosciutto (ham)," Falchi said.

"Italian ham is different from American ham. It is not smoked — the flavor comes from the system of feeding the pigs, which are smaller than American pigs, and a complicated cooking process. Each region has its own system for feeding."

Pomodoro's two chefs from Milan, Saverio Parozzo and Mauro De Nichel, started cooking when they were 14 years old and have attended St. Vincente, "the most famous cooking school in Italy" according to Falchi.

As both Parozzo and De Nichel have been in the U.S. for less than a week and neither one speaks English (and I do not speak Italian), my interview was conducted with much discussion between the participants in Italian and then translated into English, a lively and fun experience but not conducive to accuracy or detail.

Nevertheless, some of the dishes they said they would like to prepare are Frittata de la Casa, a cross between a quiche and an omelette with similar fillings; Pappardelle ai Funghi Porcini, a type of pasta with Italian mushrooms; Macaroni Tricolori, macaroni with three types of sauces, which gives the dish the three colors; Penne alle Cipolle, a small pasta with Italian onions; Bollito Misto Piemontese, leg of lamb broiled with a sauce of garlic, onion and anchovies; Pesce Spada alla Mediterranea, which is swordfish made in an Italian style.

There will be a chef's special every day and the desserts will be baked in the restaurant. Parozzo and De Nichel have one that is their specialty called Tiramisu, which is biscuit, coffee, cream and zabaione (and if you think I'm going to tell you what that is, forget it.)

To complement the food, Falchi will serve a variety of Italian wines.

"I wanted to have top quality Italian wines, some of which are not even sold in this area, for reasonable prices. There will be Nebbiolo, D'Alba, Barbera, Chardonnay, Barolo, Gattinara, Pinot Gregio, and two Italian champagnes of very fine quality for a very good price."

Falchi chose to stay in Carmel after first going to Los Angeles from Italy.

"When I decided to leave Italy I first went to Los Angeles, but found it too crowded, not my type of atmosphere. I like the area and the people here. They are more sophisticated, more knowledgeable. I felt that there was a place for a good regional Italian restaurant in this area."

The restaurant includes a large patio area for outdoor dining and will serve lunch and dinner. Pomodoro will be closed on Sundays.

FROM SCRATCH CHANGES OWNERSHIP

From Scratch is a restaurant that lives up to its name by preparing meals just like mom used to make. But of course it's chef and part owner Michel D'Avenas and his mother we are talking about.

"My mother went to Cordon Bleu cooking school in Paris, and I learned everything from her. I don't even think about it, it was such a constant thing. She lived for cooking, so I was exposed to fine foods every day," D'Avenas said.

"Nothing is pre-cooked," D'Avenas added. "We don't cook anything the day before or leave anything warming on the stove. Even our hot cereal is made up when it is ordered."

D'Avenas acquired From Scratch, which is located in the Barnyard, in April and was joined in May by his partner, Madeline Blasucci. Together they have made quite a few changes. The counter style service has changed to full service, breakfast is served all day (with a champagne brunch on Sundays), and the lunch menu has been expanded to include sandwiches and hamburgers.

"I would watch people with children come up to read the menu and go away," Ms. Blasucci said. "You need some basics for the kids, and many men don't eat quiche and salads. Now everyone can find something they like."

Both Ms. Blasucci and D'Avenas feel that the food and ingredients at the restaurant are something unique.

"The ground sirloin is a special order — top quality," said D'Avenas. "We have applewood smoked ham which gives it a different taste than hickory smoked ham. Since tasting applewood smoked, I cannot eat anything else."

"The hollandaise sauce for the Eggs Benedict is made by hand on demand and all our eggs are fresh every day from the Carmel Valley Ranch. You can tell a fresh egg by the whites and the color of the yolk. In an older egg, white spreads all over the pan, while in a fresh egg it stays together. A fresh egg yolk is a darker yellow than an older yolk. Our English muffins are three times the size of the best known English muffin."

ALPHA OMICRON PI LUNCHEON

Alpha Omicron Pi alumnae of Monterey County will have its fall luncheon at noon Nov. 2 at the home of Mrs. Harriett (Mrs. Vernon) Stewart at 225 Rio Verde, Salinas.

Dorothy (Mrs. Sidney) Little of Carmel is luncheon chairman, assisted by Patricia (Mrs. John) Burd of Carmel Valley. Members hope to attract alumnae of the organization who moved to this county recently and may be unaware of the local group. They can obtain further information by calling Mrs. Little at 625-0324.

Maria Nowell of Marina will provide the post-prandial program. A chapter member, Nowell has told children's stories to children in libraries in various parts of the county. Now she will try out for an especially sympathetic audience her new avocation — telling adult stories to adults. For this debut she has chosen an African tribal tale which she says has special meaning for all women.

MISSION RESTORATION

Jules Pages, the distinguished artist, has returned to San Francisco from a visit to the California mission buildings. In view of the efforts now being made to restore the buildings to their original state, Pages' observations are of interest.

"The Indian masons and padres," said the artist, "who built the old missions worked with genuine religious zeal. It is impossible to replace such work with the more accurate but less inspired work of modern builders."

The roof of Carmel Mission is an example of failure to adhere to the original plan, Pages found. The slope of the roof has been altered, so that in place of the long gentle slant built by the padres, there is a sharp "barn" angle.

"The roof of Carmel Mission worried me the moment I saw it," said Pages. "I knew something was wrong, but was not sure just what until I came across an old print showing the original roof."

The California Historical Survey Commission is to meet here a week from tomorrow. All interested in the restoration of Carmel Mission are invited to attend.

OCEAN FRONT RECLAMATION IS PROPOSED

Reclamation of nearly five acres of ocean-front land for public use partly financed by PWA funds will result if Street Commissioner Joseph Burge can put through a plan of installing retaining walls along the cliffs below Scenic Drive and then filling the enclosures.

"Not only would this give greatly improved road and parking facilities," he states,

"but the danger of wind and rain erosion would be ended. Furthermore there would be no need for condemning private property in an effort to widen the existing roadway, such as may occur if we make a safe two-way traffic route out of the present dangerous one."

A small city tax might be needed to pay for materials in order to get PWA money to finance labor costs, but this could be spread over a number of years and not materially raise rates, he said. This would accomplish the double purpose of reducing local unemployment and giving to city land of increasing value as time goes on, and could be a part of general beach beautification, it is believed.

PLANNERS WANT MORE LANDSCAPING

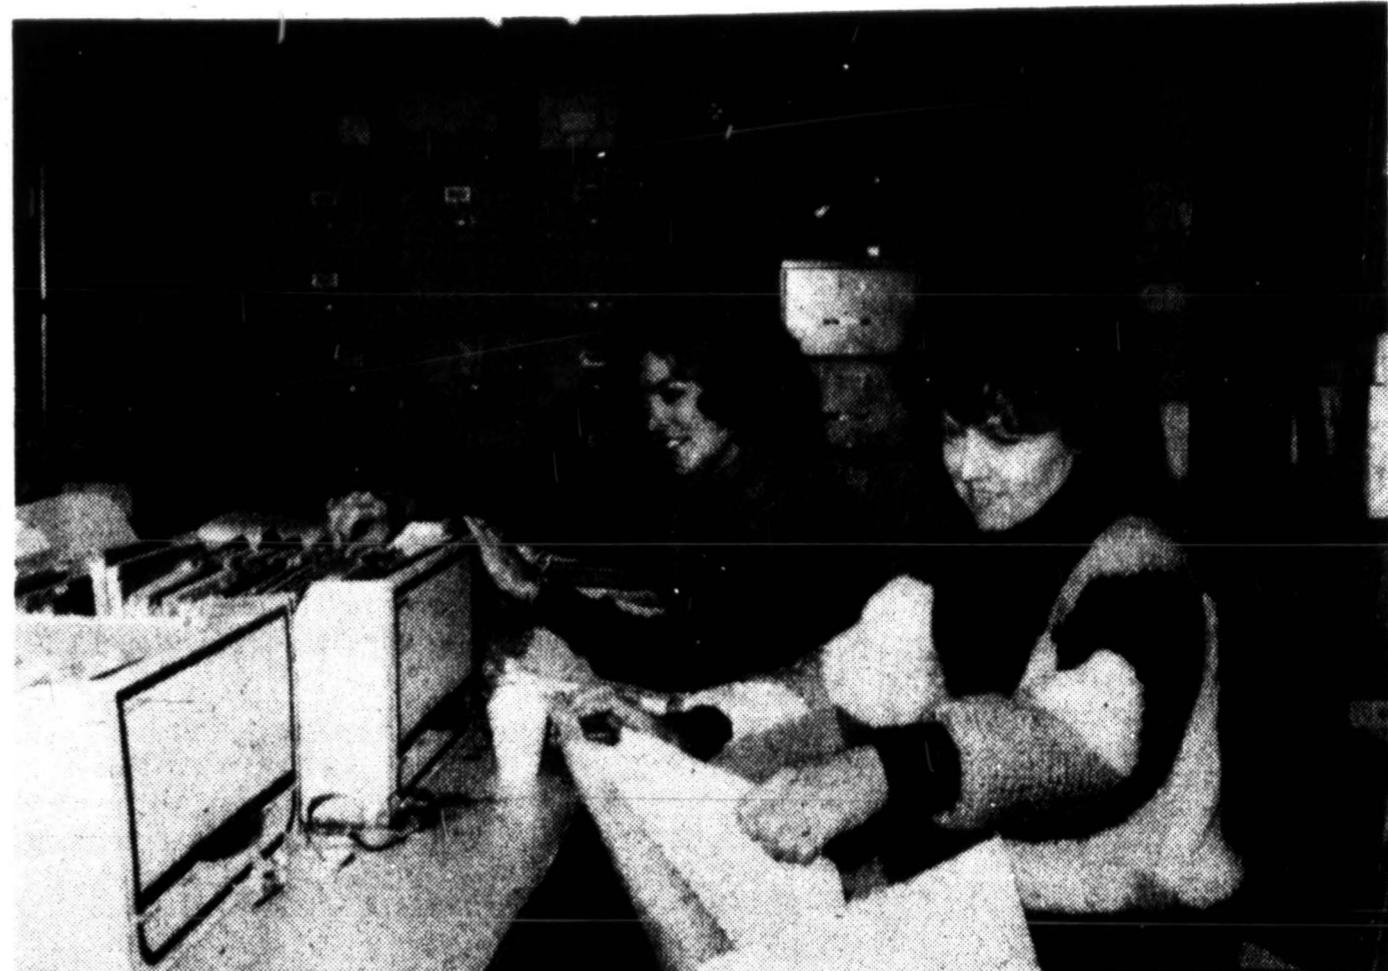

The Carmel Planning Commission was disturbed yesterday to find that less than the required amount of landscaping area had been allowed in the plans for enlarging the Carmel Post Office.

Post office property owners James Lee and Maurice Hansens submitted preliminary plans, prepared by the architectural firm of Elston and Cranston, at the planning commission study sessions.

Commissioner Herbert Blanks felt that the owners were morally obligated to provide that a minimum 2 percent of the post office site area be left as open landscaping space after previous oral commitments. The plan studied by commissioners yesterday afternoon did not provide 320 sq. ft. of landscaping area, the minimum 2 percent requirement for the six-lot business district site.

SAVE SPANISH BAY GROUP MEETS

The Forest Committee, a group of Del Monte Forest residents, held a picnic at Spanish Bay last Sunday afternoon to focus attention on problems forest residents face in light of Del Monte's plans to construct a hotel, golf course and condominiums on the Spanish Bay site.

The resident group opposes the development, arguing that Spanish Bay is the last sizeable beach in the Forest, and one of the few on the Monterey Peninsula remaining in open space.

Carl Fulton led a group of 50 or 60 people on a tour of the boundaries of the proposed building sites, which total 236 acres. The ocean forms the western boundary; 17 Mile Drive, the eastern; a group of low sand dunes, the southern; and the Asilomar beach borders the northern portion.

STATE GRANTS EXTENSION

Monterey County has been granted a one-year extension to update its general plan. The extension was approved Oct. 12 by the state Office of Planning and Research.

The extension immediately nullifies any lawsuit that would be filed against the county because of deficiencies in its general plan.

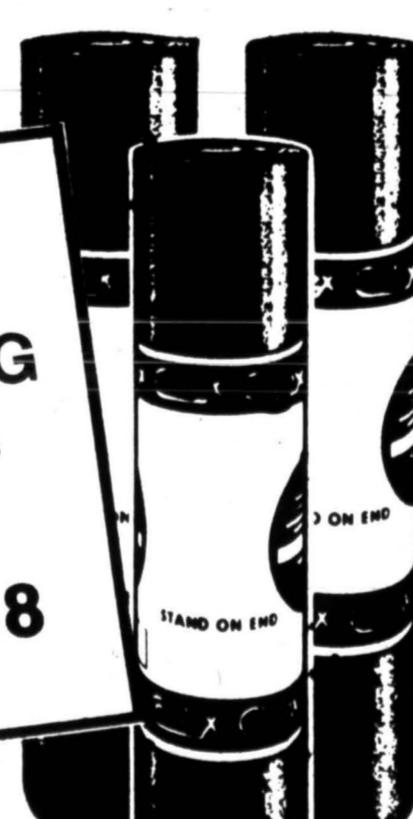

However, a lawsuit that was filed last June is still pending against the county. Harry Holt of Carmel has not withdrawn his suit, which seeks to halt all land use decisions until the general plan deficiencies are corrected. The suit also asks that the county rescind its approval of the specific plan for Carmel Valley Ranch.

Costumed kids take to streets for Halloween

HAPPY HALLOWEEN celebrations will be spiced by a birthday party as the city of Carmel turns 68 on Wednesday, Oct. 31. In both Carmel and Carmel Valley, costumed children are invited to join parades and parties that celebrate Halloween.

The Halloween parade through downtown Carmel begins at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday. The date also marks the anniversary of city incorporation: Oct. 31, 1916. The Carmel parade starts at Sunset Center, San Carlos Street at Ninth Avenue, moves north to Ocean Avenue and then proceeds west to Monte Verde Avenue. Some roads will be blocked to traffic during the approximately 90-minute parade.

The parade will feature costumed parents and children, gymnasts, antique cars, bands and a fire engine.

In Carpenter Hall back at Sunset Center, the city will present a free public birthday bash featuring music and refreshments.

Meanwhile, the school folks and kids will continue down Ocean Avenue to a beach party of their own.

Anyone who would like to donate cookies, cupcakes or cider to the Carmel party should call Sandy Farrell at city hall, 624-2781.

In Carmel Valley, a halloween party for children is planned by the Carmel Valley Community Center.

It all begins at 12:40 p.m. Wednesday with a parade that originates at Tularcitos School in the village. Costumed children will walk the parade route through the village and return to the Community Center on Ford Road.

There a party will commence, complete with games, prizes and snacks. According to Center Director Louise Kauffman, the party is open to elementary school age children and pre-school children accompanied by their parents. Admission is free.

Help is needed in the cookie and supervision departments. To volunteer, call Cathy Camp at 659-4874.

A LIGHTED jack o' lantern display and an evening of magic, music and folktales will be presented at The Barnyard Saturday, Oct. 27. Tom McCurry of Carmel will sing his original songs starting at 7:30 p.m. when he offers Music by Merlin.

The Barnyard will be brightened from noon to 4 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 28 with the sights and sounds of a harvest festival. The festival features a hay ride around the barns and fiddle music. Entries will be accepted from noon to 2 p.m. for the annual pumpkin carving contest, open to all age groups. Judging is scheduled from 2 to 4 p.m., and prizes will be awarded in all pumpkin-carving categories. The Barnyard is off Highway 1 at Carmel Valley Road, Carmel.

The Junior Friends of the Pacific Grove Public Library will present a haunted house from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 30. Admission is free to the house, open to ages six to 13.

Children ages three to eight are invited to a special Halloween program in Pacific Grove on Wednesday, Oct. 31. The films Where the Wild Things Are and Georgie will be featured. Children are also invited to wear their Halloween costumes to the 30-minute program, 10:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. The library is at 550 Central Ave. in Pacific Grove. For more information, call Lisa Madalena at 373-0603.

Stoltzman demonstrates why he is hailed as "a popular phenomenon in the world of classical music." As soloist with more than 70 orchestras, as a recitalist and chamber music performer, Stoltzman has in the past few years achieved the kind of prominence that eludes all but a handful of internationally acclaimed artists.

The hallmarks of his success have embraced not only technical facility and superb musicianship, but also, in the words of one critic, "a way of phrasing that gives the music an astonishing feeling of spontaneity — often encountered in performers of jazz" — and playing "with nuance and drama which are Nureyev's."

A student of Keith Wilson at Yale University and Kalman Opperman while a doctoral candidate at Columbia University, Stoltzman has appeared with many of the world's leading orchestras, including the New York Philharmonic, London Symphony, La Scala Orchestra in Milan, Hessichen Rundfunk in Frankfurt, Mostly Mozart Festival Orchestra, English Chamber Orchestra, Scottish Chamber Orchestra, and the Atlanta, Cincinnati, Montreal, Oakland and San Francisco symphonies.

He has performed concertos by Copland, Corigliano, Debussy, Finzi, McKinley, Mozart, Neilsen, Rossini and Weber.

As a recitalist he has been heard with such artists as Emanuel Ax, Richard Goode, Lee Luvisi, Garrick Ohlsson, Peter Serkin and Irma Vallicello. With Bill Douglas he has offered varied informal evenings of music-making, integrating jazz compositions with classical repertoire.

As Artist of the Week at the 1980 Edinburgh Festival, Stoltzman demonstrated the scope of his versatility in a whirlwind week of performances as soloist in the Copland Concerto with the London Symphony, a classical recital with Emanuel Ax, and two informal later-night concerts of jazz improvisations with Bill Douglas.

A HIGHLIGHT of Stoltzman's career was his appearance in 1982 at Carnegie Hall as the first clarinetist ever to be presented there in recital.

Offering a program of Brahms, Weber and Debussy together with a jazz medley, "Tribute to Benny," with Benny Goodman himself cheering in the audience, this historic event captured the essence of Stoltzman's artistry.

That concert was such a success that Stoltzman was immediately re-engaged for a recital this year that featured a program ranging from Bach to a group of Thelonius Monk tunes played with bassist Eddie Gomez.

Stoltzman lives in Oakland with his wife, Lucy, an accomplished chamber music artist and former Associate Concertmistress of the San Francisco Symphony, and their two children.

His program for the Carmel concert will include Grand Duo Concertante, Op. 48, by Von Weber; Sonata in F Minor for Clarinet and Piano, Op. 120, No. 1, by Brahms; Entrata No. 2 by McKinley; Dance Preludes by Lutoslawski, Pie Jesu (Requiem), Op. 48, and Sicilienne, Op. 78, by Faure and Sonata for Clarinet and Piano (1962) by Poulenc.

The concert is dedicated to Angie Machado in recognition of her many years of service to the musical community. She is a music teacher who resides in Carmel.

Tickets are available at Bartlett's Music, Carmel; Do Re Mi Music, The Barnyard, Carmel; Abinante Music, Monterey; and The Bookworks, Pacific Grove. Prices are $9, $10 and $11. Some student tickets are available free upon request.

Sunset Theater is on San Carlos at Ninth in Carmel. For information, call 372-1226.

KNIGHTS Nicholas (left) and David Barrett, sons of Anne and Richard Barrett of Carmel, are among the fanciful beings who will invade downtown Carmel during its annual parade at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 31. The city will also have a birthday party (number

AT THE CHERRY FOUNDATION

BY JANE WILGRESS

Dylan Thomas featured

THIS WEEK will bring the local opening of "The Rack of Dreams," a selection and adaptation of works by the Welsh poet Dylan Thomas. Unicorn Theatre presents this evening of poetic drama on the Cherry Foundation stage, and I am happy to say that it is directed by Dan Gotch, whose long association here has brought so many rich offerings to the community.

The theme of "The Rack of Dreams" is both nostalgic and humorous — Dylan Thomas in mid-life in search of his Welsh childhood self. It will draw on diverse sources: poetry, plays, stories and radio broadcasts.

Readers will be Jim Jensen (our audiences are familiar with his great gifts); Shirley Fischer, who has performed at the Studio Theater and the Wharf Theater and has been stage manager here twice; Lance Jacobson, actor and tech man well known at the Forest Theater; and Carey Crockett of Unicorn Theatre Presents.

Musical interpolations on the piano will be played by Madeleine Cohen, also well known to audiences here for her musical contributions to several of Dan's St. Patrick's Day galas in the past.

"The Rack of Dreams" will play Fridays and Saturdays, Oct. 26 and 27, Nov. 2 and 3 and 9 and 10, at 8 p.m. in Cherry Hall, Guadalupe and Fourth, Carmel. Donation is $5, with students and seniors $4. For reservations, call us at 624-7491.

Staging 'The Rack of Dreams'

DYLAN THOMAS' lyrical language is woven into theater in The Rack of Dreams at the Carl Cherry Foundation. Adapted and staged by Dan Gotch, The Rack of Dreams players include, left to right, Lance Jacobson, Jim Jensen and Carey Crockett. Performances are at 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays for three successive weeks. For reservations, call 624-7491.

George and Martha brawl

WHEN GEORGE bests Martha in one of their vicious psychological games, she resorts to physical violence in the Wharf Theater production of Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?

THEATER REVIEW
BY ROBERT MISKIMON

Creditable version of booze-basted tale plays Wharf

IN THE EDWARD Albee School of Marriage and Family Counseling, conflict resolution involves mutually assured destruction facilitated by demon rum and pathological denial.

George and Martha, the perfect Albee couple, go at each other's throats with a vengeance in Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?, now playing at the Wharf Theater in Monterey.

With a couple of caveats, this is a creditable performance of a well-respected masterpiece of contemporary theater.

The first caveat is that it is practically impossible to outshine the memorable film rendering of Virginia Woolf by Richard Burton and Elizabeth Taylor. The second is that the subject matter — while authentically and jarringly presented — is not your basic inspirational love story.

Within these givens, however, the Wharf Theater has mounted an effective production.

Hal Peiken, as the long-suffering history professor George, overcomes his handicap of inevitable comparison with Richard Burton very handsomely. And Gina Welch portrays quite well the booze-basted, desperate Martha without mimicry of Elizabeth Taylor.

Sucked into the alcoholic web of George and Martha's bizarre world are Nick — a young math professor played by Flip Baldwin — and his wife Honey played by Leila Knight. The action begins at 2 a.m. after a faculty drinking party and unfolds with devastating inevitability.

Martha despises George for his failure to measure up to her father's standards; George counters by ridiculing Martha as a promiscuous drunk. He admonishes her not to reveal their dark secret as the younger guests arrive; she cannot resist mentioning their "son."

Honey gets sick repeatedly but continues to drink; she passes the early morning hours in a fog. Martha makes a play for Nick ("Have you kept your body up?" she asks, leeringly) but he is relegated to the role of "houseboy" for his impotence.

George, returning with more booze, picks up on the "houseboy" game, and rubs both their noses in it. More games — sicker yet — develop. A game of "get the guests" follows the just completed "hump the hostess," in which George — angered by Martha's mention of his failed novel — weaves a not-so-fictional account of the guests which exposes their own fears and falsehoods.

WARMING to his task, George then launches into an attack on Martha and demolishes the myth of their "son," exposing for the world the fact his wife is barren.

As the morning light approaches, the guests leave and George and Martha are left centerstage — George singing softly his inebriated "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" to the tune of "Who's Afraid of the Big Bad Wolf?"

This is great stuff if you need to be reminded that there is a pathological side to human nature, and that there are real tragedies in the lives of just about everyone. As a product of the Eugene O'Neill school of Grim Reality, Edward Albee probably can't be topped.

Personally, I prefer Sesame Street.

The Wharf Theater production benefits from the considerable experience of Jeff Hudelson as director. The pacing and delivery of the performance are professional and effective.

Producer is Angelo DiGirolamo; production manager is Chuck Thurman; stage manager is Leslie Sturges; lighting technician is Mike Wecker.

Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf? plays Friday, Saturday, and Sunday through Nov. 11. Call 372-2882 for reservations.

Theatre Alliance conducts general auditions

Actors and singers will be able to audition for several theaters at once during the Monterey County Theatre Alliance general audition Sunday and Monday, Oct. 28-29, at California Repertory Theatre in Pacific Grove.

Auditioners are asked to memorize two contrasting monologues (and an optional eight bars of a song) that total no more than four minutes.

Participants may select a song in place of a monologue, but should be aware they will sing "a capella" or with a cassette recorder since no music will be provided.

Auditioners are asked to bring a one-page typed resume of their acting experience. A photo will be taken of each person and auditions will be videotaped so casting directors may view work an additional time.

The Monterey County

Theatre Alliance is searching for talent. Even inexperienced persons are encouraged to apply. More than a dozen directors will watch the auditions — all of them with several shows to cast. To reserve an audition time, call 372-0750 between 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. weekdays and ask for Madeline.

The Monterey County Theatre Alliance counts 17 local theatrical organizations in its membership.

We hope to have a sell-out crowd and are looking for everyone's involvement — parents, businesses and all members of the community who support public education."

Carmel ROP students create winning masks

CARMEL HIGH art instructor Bill Stone oversees Molly McNamara's work, which took honorable mention in the mask-making contest.

WHAT DO you find when you bring together Halloween, prizes and the Carmel High School design occupations art class? Creativity, that's what, and the energy of youthful expression applied to a task.

Tom and Paula Lawler of the Red Rooster shop in The Barnyard, Carmel, conceived and sponsored a mask-making contest. Carmel High School art instructors Bill Stone and Sue Williams-Pierik were asked if their class would like to participate. Winners would see their masks displayed at the Red Rooster, and would receive gift certificates for art supplies.

According to Stone: "We're part of the regional occupation program and we're very interested in involving the students in projects that include real-life situations, like specific assignment requirements and hard deadlines. This project not only meets those goals but is fun and creative as well."

The class has been involved with other projects, including two four-by-12-foot murals for the Monterey Bay Aquarium and art for the fifth annual FOCUS (Friends of Carmel Unified School District) party at the Forest Theater.

Winners of the competition are: Marit Brook-Kathlow, first; Nushka Zaragoza, second; Anita Roccio, third; Sheila Randazzo, fourth and Louise Curtis, fifth.

Honorable mentions were given to Matt Jardine, Jenni

Foster, Molly McNamara, Stacy White, Brent Puchik, Sean Jones and Tina Hemmingsen.

The 12 winning entries will be displayed now through Halloween in the front window of the Red Rooster in The Barnyard, Highway 1 and Carmel Valley Road, Carmel.

ANITA ROCCIO displays her rabbit mask, which took third prize in the mask-making contest.

Creative communication to be taught at Sunset Center

A course in creative oral communication will begin Monday, Nov. 5, at Sunset Center in Carmel.

Students will receive instruction in impromptu creative ideas for oral communication such as introducing a speaker, after-dinner speeches, conversation hints and announcements.

Individual help in speaking problems will be stressed, as well as use of voice, enunciation, posture and microphone technique. Questions such as how do we look; what do they see; how do they hear us; and do you make them think will be discussed.

The class will be taught by Beatrice Boehm Schoen-wisner, who received her B.A. at Columbia University and her M.A. at Stanford. She also studied voice and techniques of speaking at the University of Virginia, University of Wisconsin and the University of Vermont. She has taught adults and children in various speech and dramatic art classes.

A beginning course of six lessons is available for $24. Classes will take place at 10 a.m. to noon or 5:30 to 7 p.m. on Mondays. Class size is limited. To pre-register, call the Sunset Center office, 624-3996. The office is located at Eighth and San Carlos, Carmel, and is open 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

ON STAGE

The Rack of Dreams

Unicorn Theatre Presents in association with Carl Cherry Foundation will stage The Rack of Dreams.

Adapted and staged by Dan Gotch from the poetry, plays, letters and stories of Dylan Thomas, The Rack of Dreams places Thomas' lyrical language into a theatrical setting.

The theme of Dylan Thomas in middle age searching for the childhood self he left behind in Wales permeates this adaptation. In searching for this childhood self, he poetically stumbles through his past with humorous, nostalgic and touching anecdotes about teaching school, bank holidays, the pubs and cafes of Swansea, girls, fairs and the ever present sea.

Performances are at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Oct. 26-27, at Cherry Hall, Guadalupe and Fourth, Carmel. Donation is $5, $4 for students and seniors. Tickets: 624-7491.

The Best Man

Gore Vidal won numerous awards for this work that presents the minds and fighting spirit of two presidential candidates.

It will be presented by The Robert Louis Stevenson Players at 8 p.m. Thursday and Saturday, Oct. 25 and 27, and at 7 p.m. Friday, Oct. 26.

Brooks Atkinson of the New York Times described The Best Man as "a piece of first-rate journalism, both comic and exciting." Tickets: 624-1257.

The Fantasticks

The musical now celebrating its 25th anniversary will be performed in the intimate setting of the Studio Theatre at Hartnell College. The Fantasticks, which includes the memorable song Try to Remember, opens with a preview performance Thursday, Oct. 25. Harvey's work featured at Gallery Americana

THE 10TH one-man show of paintings by Maurice Harvey at Gallery Americana in Carmel can be viewed through Wednesday, Oct. 31.

The artist is a graduate of the Southend College of Art in England and also attended the London College of Art.

Now an American citizen residing in California, Harvey is noted for his English and American landscape, seascape and architecturally oriented garden scenes. Whether it be the cloud-cluttered skies of England's East Anglia or the rich rolling hills of his adopted California, Harvey's paintings evoke memories of the timeless way of the land and sea, and man's contribution to life's scene.

In this year's show, the artist introduces major new works exclusively for Gallery Americana — the South Sea Islands.

"I am looking at the islands through the eyes of 18th and 19th Century painters, where the predominant earth tones and soft hues give way to the sudden shock of vivid color intermingled with native growth, which then diffuses into those beautiful purples and greens indigenous to the South Sea Islands," Harvey said.

"My painting of the Na Pali coast called 'Sweet Profusion' is based on a memorable evening in Kauai."

Recently, Harvey was commissioned by the Franklin Mint Gallery to create four paintings for their galleries.

Gallery Americana is on Sixth Avenue and Lincoln Street. For more information, call 624-5071.

DOWN TO Meet the Tide, a painting by Maurice Harvey, can be seen at Gallery Americana in Carmel. This is the artist's 10th one-man show at the gallery, located on Sixth and Lincoln in Carmel.

LOVELY DESERT, an original by James Fetherolf, is among the paintings displayed at his one-man show at Simic Galleries in Carmel. The artist will attend an opening reception for the exhibit, 5 to 9 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 27.

Fetherolf's landscapes highlighted at Simic

AN EXHIBIT of landscapes by former motion picture artist James Fetherolf opens Saturday, Oct. 27, at Simic Galleries in Carmel. The artist will be present at a 5 to 9 p.m. champagne reception to toast the event.

James Fetherolf learned the exacting techniques of creating ultra-realistic landscapes through his years as a matte artist with Walt Disney Studios.

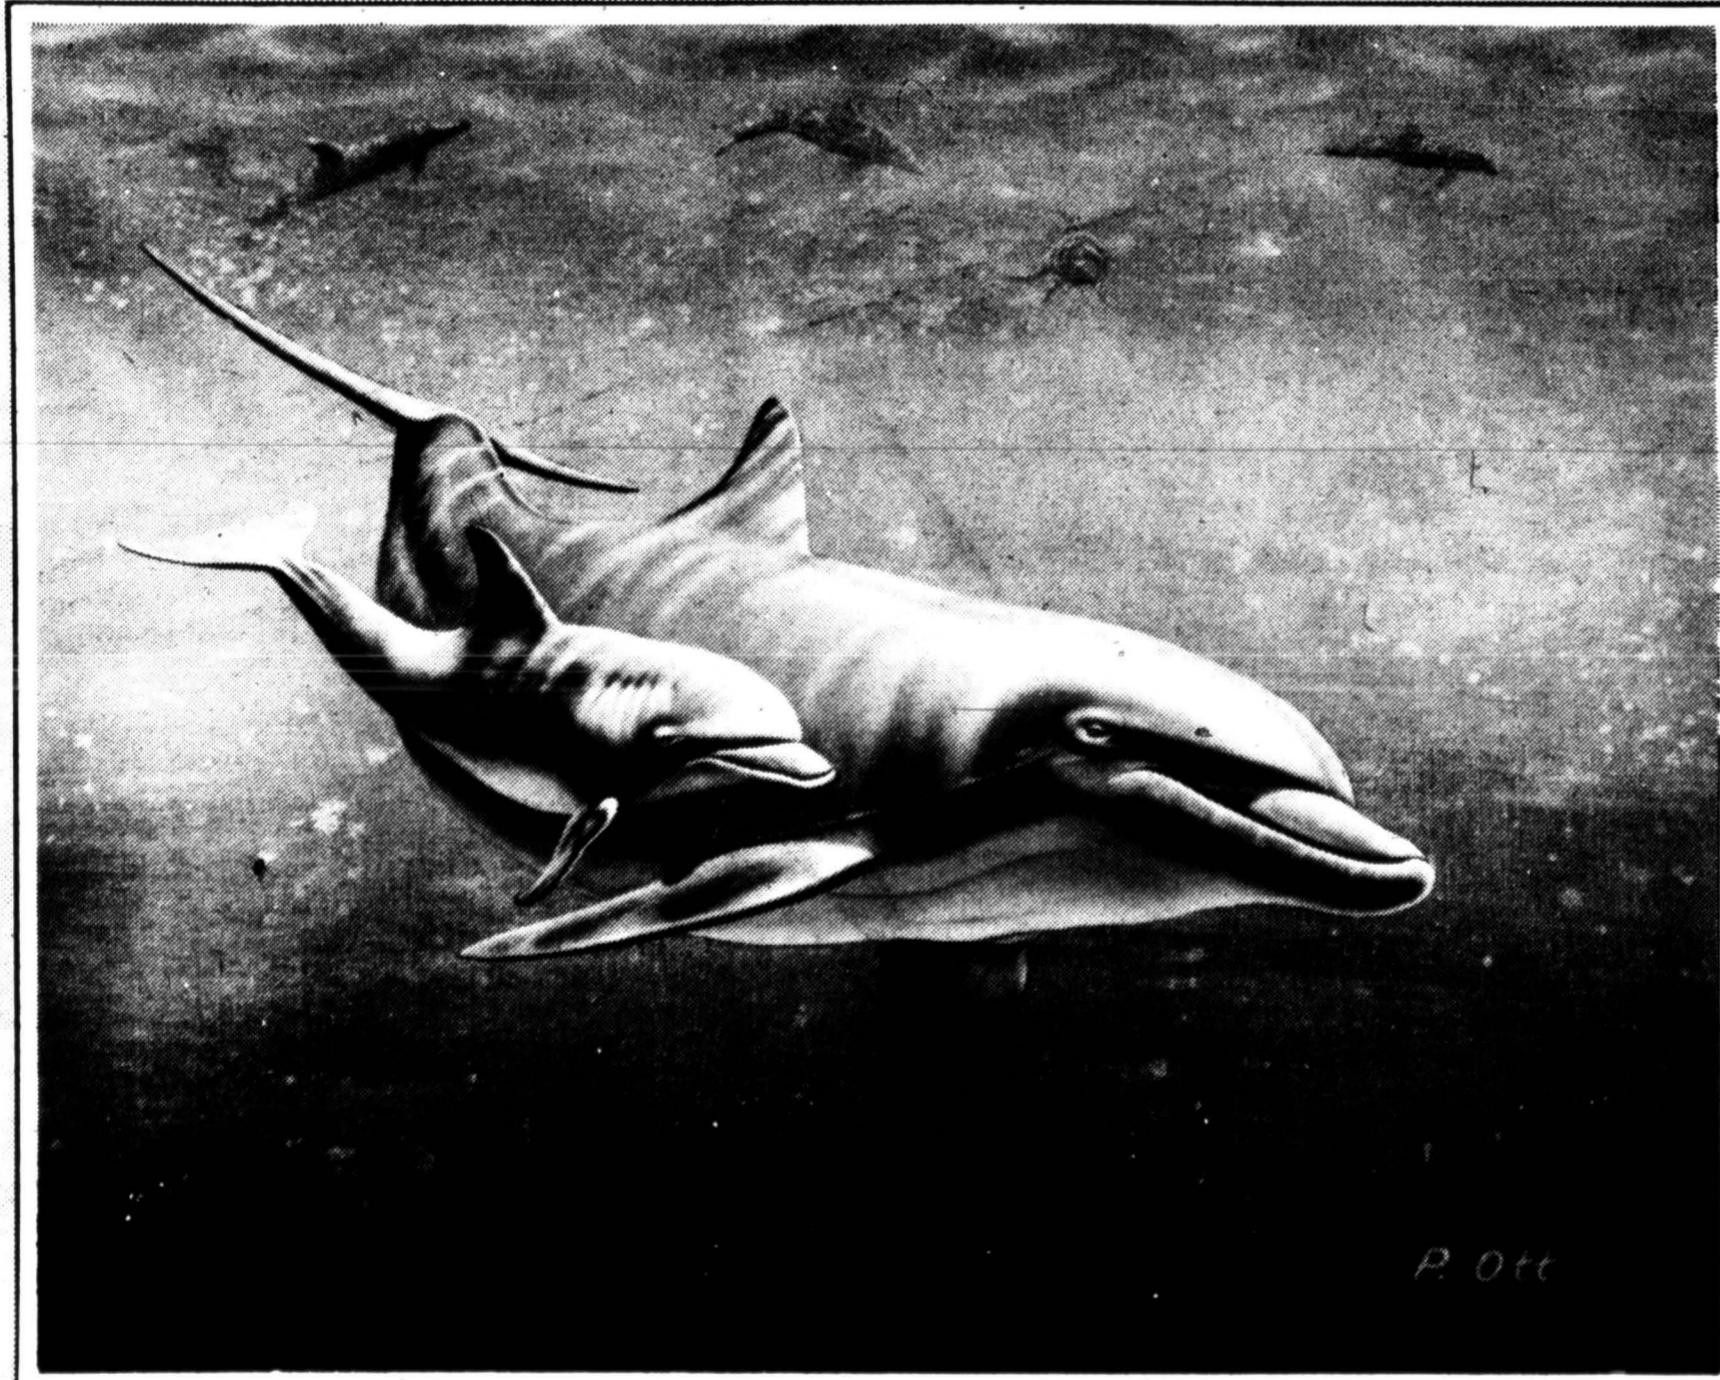

Painting on glass panels, Fetherolf designed realistic backdrops for films which could not be distinguished from scenes actually shot on location.

The artist has been honored with the Gold Medal from the Franklin Mint of American Art, accepted into the bicentennial exhibition with five paintings at the R.W. Norton Museum in Shreveport, La., and distinguished with the commissioned painting of Washington, D.C., on permanent display in Philadelphia. His originals have been reproduced into graphics and prints.

Simic Galleries will announce the release of two new limited edition graphics during the show. Spirit of Summer and Valley Guardians depict the California rolling hills and the silhouetted mountain cathedrals of Yosemite. Fetherolf will be available to sign these limited edition prints during the show.

The show will take place at the newest location of Simic Galleries — Simic South at San Carlos and Sixth, Carmel. For additional information, call 624-7522.

Bank seeks photographers

THE CALIFORNIA Insurance Group has inaugurated a yearly photographic competition that will use its annual report to showcase winning entries, Chairman Charlie Bancroft announced.

"Corporate annual reports typically feature pictures of people and products," Bancroft noted. "Our company has encouraged fine photographic art in its past three annual reports, and now wants to recognize annually those individuals who've committed themselves to excellence in photography."

Judges for the first competition will be Morley Baer of Carmel, Dick Garrod of Monterey and Jerry Takigawa of Pacific Grove.

Amateur and professional photographers living in the counties of Monterey, Santa Cruz, San Benito and San Luis Obispo are eligible to enter. There will be no entry fee.

Prizes are a $300 best of show award, a $150 second place, up to eight $50 honorable mentions, and a $200 President's Award for purchase of an image that will be displayed permanently at the CIG headquarters.

In addition to being published in the 1984 CIG Annual Report, winning photographs will be displayed in the eight California cities where the company has branch offices. They will also be displayed at the Monterey Conference Center. A catalog will be available wherever the exhibit is shown, including reproductions of the winning entries, plus prices that winners wish to charge for collectors' prints.

Full details and entry forms will be available soon at camera stores, college photo departments, photo galleries and other outlets. Further information can also be obtained from Robert Neubert, the CIG's senior consultant for advertising and public relations, by writing the CIG at 2300 Garden Road, Monterey, 93940, or by calling 372-7112.

Crisis center wine tasting, auction planned

The Ninth Annual Wine and Cheese Tasting Auction benefiting the Rape Crisis Center of Monterey will take place Saturday evening, Oct. 27, at the York School in Monterey. Hours are 7 to 10 p.m., and advance tickets are $5 per person.

The Rape Crisis Center is seeking donations of items to auction from the Monterey County communities. These items could include paintings, photographs (last year an Ansel Adams was auctioned), furniture, clothing, jewelry, art objects and services (a dentist has offered free check-ups for this year's auction). Needed too are gift certificates for dinners and lodgings.

Proceeds from the evening's auction will benefit the Rape Crisis Center. For more than 10 years this agency has provided educational materials and speakers for presentations and workshops to schools and community organizations. The center's victim services cover the Monterey Peninsula and Northern Monterey County.

"We are a small agency doing a big job," said executive director Sue Buchholz-Lear. "We need community help."

To donate items or to obtain more information about the auction, call Sue Buchholz-Lear or Sue Tasner at the Rape Crisis Center, 373-3955.

Focus Pocus film series continues

THE ART film "Focus Pocus" program continues Friday, Oct. 26, at the Pacific Grove Art Center. The movies run from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Admission is $3 for non-members and $2.50 for members.

The proposed film schedule includes Canadian Pacific, a 1974 release by David Rimmer. Jonas Mekas of Village Voice called it a "very impeccably executed, very formal film. But its formalism is very unimposing, like a Hudson School painting. I'm looking forward to seeing it again."

Unsere Afrikareise was made by Peter Kubelka between 1961 and 1966. According to Mekas: "Unsere Afrikareise is about the richest, most articulate, and most compressed film I have ever seen. I have seen it four times and I am going to see it many, many times more, and the more I see it, the more I see in it. Kubelka's film is one of the cinema's few masterpieces and a work of such great perfection that it forces one to re-evaluate everything that one knew about cinema."

Kenneth Anger's Lucifer Rising (1980) will also be shown. As reported by the American Federation of the Arts: "Lucifer Rising, Anger's most recently completed film, is perhaps his most ambitious work to date; its subject — Lucifer the fallen angel — has possessed and inspired Anger for a decade. Shot on location in Egypt, Germany, Iceland, Great Britain and India, Anger returned with footage containing some of the most striking lighting effects ever captured on film. Anger's Lucifer Rising has memorable performances by Marianne Faithfull, Anger himself (as the Magnus) and prominent members of London's cultural scene."

For more information, call 375-2208.

Monterey Megawalk draws U.S. racing greats

IF WALKING to your car seems a chore, consider watching the fourth annual Megawalk on Saturday, Oct. 27.

Many of the top national race walkers in the nation, including the best race walkers from Northern and Southern California, will compete in the 10 kilometer race.

The race will take place on a seven and three-eighths lap track at Laguna Grande Park, Canyon Del Rey between Del Monte and Fremont in Monterey. The route should take the winner about 45 minutes to complete.

About 50 walkers, men and women, are expected to compete, according to Giulio de Petra of the Monterey Peninsula Walk Walk Club. Last year, Wayne Glusker, one of the best long-distance race walkers in the country, won the event in 46:38.

The race is organized by the Monterey Peninsula Walk Walk Club, a non-profit tax-exempt California corporation dedicated to the promotion of race walking. The Monterey Kiwanis, who have sponsored this event since its inception in 1981, will be in great number at the course to insure its success. For details, call 624-7211.

Sunday 1-4

Ocean views from the second floor of either of these two homes can be yours. Choose your location: Carmel within walking distance of town or MPCC a short distance from Birdrock.

1. LINCOLN BETWEEN 1ST AND 2ND. A delightful and BRAND NEW home a short walk north of the Post Office in Carmel is CASA CONTENTA. Designed by the acclaimed local designer, DIANE STEVENSON, this charming two bedroom and two bath home captures the essence of Carmel home charm in its 1600+ feet of living space.

Open-beam ceilings, skylights, Mexican tile floors, fireplace with usage in two separate rooms, brand new appliances that include gas range, microwave oven, and refrigerator plus washer-dryer, dishwasher, and disposal are all amenities that go with the house.

Each room has either access to the large western-facing deck with its sylvan views or its own balcony. From the master bedroom you enjoy a view of the sea over the top of the forest. The bathrooms must be seen to be believed. Jacuzzi tub, old-fashioned but new commodes, beautiful basin treatment, lovely easy-care tile, "footed" second tub, and the incomparable TOWER OF SHOWER are part of this delightful home.

Completing the property are magnificent stone walkways, patios, and planters plus a stone-deck parking structure. The best is always more expensive than the cheap but we think it well worth the price of $495,000.

2. MARCHETA AT BIRDROCK, MPCC. This house is located across the street from the golf course and views of the fairways and the sea, plus Birdrock itself's just down the street a short distance. Great walking, great viewing country. From the two upstairs bedroom windows and balcony you have a lovely view of the sea all the way to Japan (or thereabouts).

Included in the house are three bedrooms and two baths, living room with fireplace, separate dining room with fireplace, breakfast area, kitchen with patio view, enclosed patio, and a double garage. All this comes on a large corner lot in an area of the forest that is especially sunny and bright. A nicer location would be hard to imagine. And the price that we are asking (make an offer) is a low—for the area and view—$299,000.
